

Israeli warplanes in attack on Arab positions in Jordan

By MURRAY J. BROWN
United Press International

Iraq and Jordan reported attacks by Israeli warplanes against Arab forces in Jordan today. Each claimed their anti-aircraft gunners shot down two of the Israeli raiders.

In Jerusalem, Israeli military spokesmen reported one aerial raid across the cease fire line but made no mention of any losses.

Observers in Beirut said the wording of the Iraqi and Jordanian reports indicated both were referring to the same reported Israeli air strike, with each claiming credit for downing the two planes.

Radio Baghdad said 14 Israeli planes attacked Iraqi forces stationed in northern Jordan and claimed Iraqi gunners knocked down two of them.

A Jordanian spokesman in Amman said Jordanian gunners shot down two Israeli planes which attacked troop positions also in the north of Jordan in two waves. Earlier, Jordan said two Israeli planes bombed its territory with napalm but were driven back by anti-aircraft fire.

Israeli spokesmen in Jerusalem said two of their jets struck Jordanian positions south of the Sea of Galilee after the Arabs opened fire on an Israeli patrol across the Jordan River cease fire line.

There was no confirmation in Jerusalem of the other two raids reported by Baghdad and Amman.

An Israeli military spokesman described the Radio Baghdad attack report as "another one of those light-headed, wishful thinking, war scare bubbles they throw into the air in Beirut, and which stand in midair until we are asked to puncture them."

The Arab reports of increased Israeli air action came as President Nixon was reported embarking on a drive to bring peace to the Middle East. He moved toward big power talks and resumption of formal relations with Egypt, severed by Cairo during the 1967 Arab-Israeli War.

A military spokesman in Amman said Israeli planes attacked Jordanian positions in northern Jordan around 9 a.m. (2 a.m. EST). Jordanian gunners scored a direct hit on one of three planes in the first wave, he said, and the Israeli jet was "seen falling in the direction of the Tiberias Sea of Calilee area."

A second wave of Israeli planes struck about 25 minutes later, he said, and Jordanian gunners opened fire again. He said one of the raiders was seen burning as it fell in the direction of the Israeli-occupied Syrian Heights.

Iraq also reported Israeli jet plane attacks on its troop positions in northern Jordan around the same time. It claimed Iraqi gunners shot down two of the attacking planes.

The Baghdad Radio report said 14 Israeli planes staged a 25-minute raid. It said one Iraqi soldier was slightly wounded. It said the two downed Israeli planes "were seen falling in the direction of the Israeli-occupied Syrian Heights." Baghdad Radio said the other 12 Israeli jets fled.

The claim was the second Iraqi report of such action against its 10,000-man force in Jordan in five days. Thursday, Iraq said seven Israeli planes raided Iraqi positions in northern Jordan, claiming one was shot down. Israeli denied the Thursday raid. Jordan said only that six Israeli planes had violated its air space in two separate incidents.

In Amman, Jordanian spokesmen said two Israeli planes today hit only crops with their napalm eight miles south of the Sea of Galilee. He said it was the second such raid in two days by two of Israel's French-built Super Mystere jets.

In Jerusalem, Israeli officials said the two planes today went into action "over the sources of Jordanian fire," answering the fire directed at an Israeli patrol.

Jordan also said its forces traded machinegun fire with Israeli troops three miles south of the Sea of Galilee. The Jordanians said they suffered no casualties in the 65-minute fight.

THE MOTORCYCLE that carried Tony A. Adams to his death yesterday on North H Street lies crumpled beside the highway north of Central Avenue. The Air Force ambulance that was involved in the fatal collision sits off the road, background. Driver of the ambulance, Airman 1.C. Thomas Walter Gagen aided in an unsuccessful attempt to revive Adams at the scene. Adams was pronounced dead at Lompoc Hospital. Gagen was transported to Vandenberg Air Force Base Hospital where he was treated for shock. Authorities continued to investigate the accident today.

Village man killed in crash of AF ambulance, motorcycle

A retired airman — out of the service only about five weeks — was killed yesterday morning in a collision of his motorcycle and an Air Force ambulance on North H Street.

Tony Adams, 38, of 505 Sunbeam Ave., Vandenberg Village, was dead on arrival at Lompoc Hospital despite rescue efforts by Sheriff's Deputy Dale Schade and the driver of the ambulance, Airman 1.C. Thomas Walter Gagen. Schade and Gagen reportedly attempted unsuccessfully to revive Adams by mouth to mouth resuscitation and external heart massage. Dr. Rodney Hamer pronounced the man dead on arrival at the hospital shortly after 8 a.m.

Lompoc police were investigating the accident today. Preliminary investigation indicates Adams on the motorcycle and Gagen in the Air Force ambulance were both southbound on North H Street. The collision occurred in the southbound lane near the entrance to Lompoc Air- port.

Adams' body was thrown or dragged about 190 feet south from the point of impact, coming to rest on the edge of west side of H Street, the report indicates.

The ambulance proceeded another estimated 150 feet farther, coming to rest off the west side of the highway, according to the preliminary report.

Funeral arrangements were pending at McPeck Family Mortuary.

It was the first traffic fatality in the city since Halloween Eve, 1967. Gagen had been enroute from Vandenberg Air Force Base to his station on South Vandenberg at the time of the accident. Ironically Gagen was forced to travel through Vandenberg Village and Lompoc enroute to his station because the military is still trying to replace the storm damaged bridge over Surf.

Gagen was transported to the base hospital after the accident, in a state of shock. Base officials said he would be released today.

Adams had retired from the Air Force only about five weeks ago and was working as a machine repairman for State-side Office Supplies, 205 W. Ocean Ave.

Among the survivors is his wife Marianne and three children.

Hayakawa tells House uses of student violence

WASHINGTON (UPI) — S.I. Hayakawa, acting president of San Francisco State College, told Congress today students involved in rioting on the school's campus, used violence as an essential part of their tactics.

"The college use of police was a response to violence — not to the cause," he told a House special subcommittee on education. He testified about student demonstrations on the San Francisco campus in recent months. Police were called out at times to quell the disturbances.

"The people who deplore the use of police on campus seemed to forget that the first days of a student strike saw violence introduced by the students themselves as essential to their plan," Hayakawa said.

He said only about 300 of the school's 18,000 students were involved in campus rioting and that they were helped by a handful of faculty members he called "dedicated revolutionaries."

Welfare action programs ordered

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon has directed his Cabinet officers and advisers to propose plans for a wide range of action programs in the fields of education and welfare, the White House announced today.

One of these asked Secretary Robert H. Finch of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, together with Labor Secretary George P. Shultz, to make recommendations into the need for "substantive changes" in present anti-poverty programs operated by the Office of Economic Opportunity. Mentioned "mostly notably" was the Job Corps which Nixon has said he will abolish.

Evidence has been growing that the Nixon Administration will allow the OEO to fade out of existence on June 30. Finch said Sunday that some successful anti-poverty programs "will be transferred" from the OEO to other agencies and that still others would be absorbed by a

Hickel tells board temporary freeze on drilling possible

U.S. Secretary of Interior Walter Hickel in addressing the county Board of Supervisors this morning said he thought it would be possible for the Interior Department to put a temporary freeze on all drilling operations in Federal waters in the Santa Barbara Channel pending application of the stricter drilling controls and regulations.

His statement was made in response to a query from Chairman Francis H. Beattie who asked if such controls could be placed immediately to reduce the possibility of more pollution from other drilling operations.

While Hickel and his staff listened, the Supervisors voted 5-0 to adopt a resolution calling for immediate cessation of all drilling in Federal waters off Santa Barbara County pending an application of controls which would preclude the possibility of a similar disaster from present and future drilling.

Supervisor George H. Clyde of Montecito, whose First District was threatened by the eruption, said that, "We in Santa Barbara say to Mr. Hickel with even more conviction and determination that it must never happen again." Clyde said the current spill, going into its seventh day, represents one of the most serious water pollution emergencies in California history.

Clyde said that the resolution was going to the President, to Hickel's office, to U.S. Senators and to Congressman Charles M. Teague.

Clyde said that he was also asking Hickel to preclude the punching of any more holes in this gaseous faulty crust until guarantees can be given.

"This well was the fourth of 180 planned in this lease alone, not to mention other Federal areas where drilling is going on in much deeper water and where controls will be even more difficult if not impossible," he said.

Hickel said the reason he felt stricter controls are necessary here and now is that Interior Department regulations governing such drilling have not been up to date in 15 years.

Meanwhile, stiff offshore winds today pushed the vast oil slick away from 40 miles of shore-line threatened by thousands of gallons of the reddish-brown crude.

The Coast Guard reported the 10-by-20 mile slick was under "reasonable control," but oil was still bubbling to the surface from undersea fissures at 21,000 gallons a day.

Roughneck oil workers struggled on the Union Oil Co. offshore platform A where the crude oil and natural gas erupted from the ocean bottom last Tuesday.

Crews were attempting to remove a valve in the top of the well casing so they could force cement-like drilling mud down the shaft to seal off the well.

Anacapa Island, one of the string of islands about 10 miles offshore which form the Santa Barbara Channel, was reported completely encircled by a major concentration of oil. A colony of seals was believed living on Anacapa but authorities said to their knowledge the animals were not affected by the slick.

The offshore winds today pushed the major portion of the slick down the channel and out to sea through the eastern end. The favorable winds were expected to continue through Tuesday.

Fingers of oil reached the surf on seven miles of beaches between Rincon and Pitas Point and oily driftwood was floating offshore at other locations.

Natural gas escaping from the well could be smelled in helicopters 1,000 feet above. The oil itself foamed reddish-brown on the whitecaps, giving off a powerful stench.

There were varying estimates on the wildlife death toll taken by the oil.

Conservation groups claimed as many as 1,000 birds were killed, but the state Department of Fish and Game said an actual count showed only 23 dead.

Hickel, under fire from conservationists who claim he is partisan to oil interests, said in a statement issued Sunday night that experts from the U.S. Geological Survey were reviewing the four offshore drilling operations still continuing on federal leases in the Santa Barbara Channel.

"My instructions are that all possible steps be undertaken immediately to prove the greatest possible margin of safety against any further well blow-ups," Hickel said.

Marines, volunteers assist in flood repair, clean-up

Rehabilitation work continued in the flood ravaged Lompoc Valley today on two main fronts — bridges and clean up.

A convoy of 25 trucks carrying approximately 60 Marines and equipment departed Camp Pendleton this morning enroute to Vandenberg AFB where they will construct temporary bridges across the swollen Santa Ynez River.

The convoy is expected to arrive here tomorrow morning when work will begin on the installation of Bailey type bridges.

An advance cadre of ten Marines was airlifted here Friday to make preliminary studies and to coordinate activities for the main work force.

The Marines will construct a one-way bridge at Floradale Avenue to replace the washed-out PCI bridge. Work on this project is expected to be completed Feb. 12. The Marines of the Fifth Marine Bridge Company then will move to 13th Street across from the entrance to South Vandenberg and begin construction on a two-way bridge there. Officials said the 13th Street bridge should be completed Feb. 25. Meanwhile, work was initiated this morning to dispose of the remains of the Surf bridge which crumbled under the flood's tremendous forces.

Vandenberg AFB announced over the weekend that many of its personnel are volunteering to aid in the clean-up detail. Hutson said that the various squadrons on base have individual volunteers and that these names are being reported to the Base Control Center. Once farmers and ranchers make their needs known to Hutson, he telephones the base to coordinate the two elements.

Nixon planning European jaunt

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon is making tentative plans for a "working trip" to Western Europe, probably within 60 days, the White House said today.

Speculation about such a trip have circulated for several days. This was the first time the White House had discussed the forthcoming journey in any detail.

Nixon's press secretary, Ronald Ziegler, said exploratory and preparatory discussions with some European governments began during the past week-end on such matters as scheduling, itinerary and possible dates.

It already was known that Nixon was contemplating an early trip to the Western European capitals offits North American Treaty Organization (NATO) allies to show that he regards the alliance as still essential to the west.

Ziegler said the "President is hopeful that the trip can be arranged."

While stressing that no final decisions had been made, he said the White House was hopeful these decisions could be arrived at in order that the chief executive's first foreign trip could be completed by the start of the NATO Council of Foreign Ministers meeting in Washington on April 10.

Glimpses

Kite flying season beginning.

Huge traffic jams reported on Highway 101 near Carpinteria yesterday as drivers strain for look at giant oil slick, Plastic booms were placed around platform A where the flow of oil was thickest. The "sea curtain" drops three feet below the surface from pillows filled with plastic foam.

Small boats swept the oil against the barrier with smaller curtains and then tanker vessels sucked the oil from the surface using a vacuum process.

Log booms were lashed across entrances to harbors and marinas up and down the coast to prevent oil from coating the hulls of small craft. Thus far, the oil had not invaded the harbors.

The oil began surging to the surface last Tuesday, as crews were replacing a drill bit, in what would be called a gusher on land. The crew dropped a valve into the well head to halt the flow.

They succeeded in halting the flow from the casing about 800 feet away from the platform, but the oil started bubbling from fissures in the ocean floor.

Experts believed that when the valve was dropped into the casing the, oil oozed out between the casing and the hole, was diverted into another oil bearing stratum at about 500 feet, and made its way through the cracks in the earth to emerge through the ocean floor.

A meeting held at 10 a.m. this morning at the Lompoc Warehouse on West Laurel Avenue was expected to iron out coordination problems and to ease the placement of volunteer workers on ranches and farms where flood damages were significant.

A meeting called for 10 a.m. today by John Beattie, president of the local Farm Bureau, was expected to produce a well coordinated plan aimed at bringing available assistance to those in need.

Ranchers and farmers from up and down the Santa Ynez, plus city, county and Vandenberg officials were at the meeting held at the Lompoc Warehouse.

George Hutson, assistant to Supervisor Francis H. Beattie, is serving as the "clearing house" in an effort to coordinate activities. His office is in the county building at 133 S. D St. (RE 6-3411). Farmers and ranchers who need labor and other forms of assistance should contact Hutson at his office.

Vandenberg AFB announced over the weekend that many of its personnel are volunteering to aid in the clean-up detail. Hutson said that the various squadrons on base have individual volunteers and that these names are being reported to the Base Control Center. Once farmers and ranchers make their needs known to Hutson, he telephones the base to coordinate the two elements.

John Whittemore, county representative, is coordinating with state and Federal agencies requests for chain saws, heavy trucks, cranes and other equipment.

"The disaster is so wide spread that the matter becomes one of first locating the equipment and then scheduling its availability. It is hoped that such equipment can be located and brought to the local area this week — possibly by Thursday," Hutson said.

The Bailey bridge construction is expected to reduce or eliminate the huge traffic problems now being encountered at the Lompoc Wye and at other points between the city and base. With all bridges linking North and South Vandenberg out, traffic to and from South Vandenberg is being directed through the Wye over to Central Avenue and then funneled to Highway 246 via connecting streets.

New look budget for governor

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—Gov. Ronald Reagan's administration was putting the final touches today on its presentation of a "new-look" budget to be given the legislature starting the fifth week of the 1969 session.

The Assembly scheduled a late morning meeting while the Senate did not plan to convene until the afternoon.

The budget, expected to be around $6 billion, is in two volumes. One is the familiar type listing each expense like salaries and equipment as a line item. The second volume is a "program budget" setting out a desired goal and the cost of achieving that goal. It often involves a number of state agencies.

Reagan is scheduled to outline his proposed 1969-70 budget — The third of his administration — to the people in a statewide television appearance Tuesday night.

The governor already has announced he will ask the legislature for a 10 per cent across-the-board reduction in the income tax for calendar year 1970. It would amount to a rebate of about $1 million to the taxpayers.

Anticipation that the budget will have a surplus of more than $2 million and Reagan's proposal for a tax reduction a year from now already has brought grumbling from Assembly Democrats.

Minority Leader Jess M. Unruh, D-Inglewood, has urged all surplus be returned to the taxpayers and money for desired new programs obtained by shifting priorities.

He said the surplus resulted from the $1 billion tax increase Reagan won in 1967 and should be returned.

Assemblyman John G. Veneman, R-Modesto, chairman of the lower house revenue and taxation committee, earlier estimated the surplus at $205 million.

Reagan's tax cut plan also was attacked by Assemblyman John Burton, D-San Francisco, a member of the Assembly ways and means committee.

Burton said the across-the-board proposal would result in "a real windfall for the wealthy while returning something like the widow's mite to low income families."

A department of finance spokesman said the 1969-70 budget would make the most extensive use yet of the program budget in California.

"Most of the departments will have two complete budgets—one line and one program—but not all of them are going to be in very good program form," he said.

Under a program budget all expenses to maintain a program—for example water control or job training—are treated as a whole without regard for the agencies involved.

"Like programs for job training," the spokesman explained, "we'd have them all in one format. Then when we see it costs x millions of dollars we can divide it by trainees or referrals."

"Then we can see that this is what we're paying for and this is what we're getting."

Some legislators are not favorably inclined to program budgets, the spokesman conceded. "They like to see line items—like a request for more trucks by a department. They want to see what it costs and then question it."

He said the trouble with a line item budget is "you lose sight of the forest for the trees."

Custom agents shot by mistake by policeman

CONCORD, Calif. (UPI)—Three U. S. Customs agents were shot during a stakeout Sunday by a veteran police officer who said he thought they were narcotics suspects trying to kill him.

Police chief James Chambers said officer Alex D. McLennan, 36, opened fire because he "believed his life was in danger."

Agent George Gudbranson, 30, Walnut Creek, was shot in the head and was in "very critical condition" at Concord Community Hospital, Agents David Wilson, 26, San Francisco, and Leon Jaussard, 29 Pleasant Hill were in fair condition.

The customs men, like McLennan in plainclothes, apparently thought the officer was a narcotics suspect. Chambers said they had McLennan, a 10 year veteran of the force in this East San Francisco Bay Area town, "covered" with their weapons.

Chambers said both law enforcement agencies knew the other was taking part in the

Hayakawa says chance college to be opened

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Dr. S. I. Hayakawa, acting president of strife-torn San Francisco State College, says there is a "reasonable chance" his school will open for the second semester and complete the academic year.

In a television interview (Face the Nation-CBS), Hayakawa said Sunday the 18,000-student campus is still "somewhere in between" being open and closed at the moment.

The troubled campus ended fall semester last Friday and is scheduled to begin the spring semester Feb. 17. It has been the scene of constant clashes between demonstrators and police since two minority student groups went on strike Nov. 6.

About 750 persons have been arrested during the strike, which was joined Jan. 6 by union teachers seeking improved salary and welfare benefits.

Hayakawa kept the campus open under police protection but attendance by both students and teachers has been poor, there have been some doubts about the school's ability to reopen.

The acting president said Sunday the aim of some of the most militant black student leaders was still "to close the place down."

"Most militant black students retain their power by gangsterism and intimidation," he said. In such tactics as fire bombing and physical threats, the black students are "aided and abetted by white militants," including members of the Students for a Democratic Society, he added.

Hayakawa said he probably would accept a recommendation from the school's Council of Academic Deans that striking members of the American Federation of Teachers who return to the start of the second semester be reinstated, but with

Hippie community escapes from fire

NOVATO, Calif. (UPI)—Twenty members of a hippie commune, including 10 children, escaped injury early Sunday when a roaring fire destroyed the rambling three-story mansion of businessman-turned-guru Donald McCoy.

However, Fire Chief George Cavallero, 50, was killed when he lost control of his car while speeding to the blaze.

Forty other members of McCoy's commune, which he calls "The Chosen Family," were asleep in other buildings at the 450-acre Rancho Olompali when the fire broke out.

stakeout in front of the Concord Inn but the men involved did not know each other by sight.

The officers had been watching for Lawrence Fassler of Tucson, Ariz., who was later arrested in front of the Inn with 1,500 pounds of marijuana he had stashed in a nearby truck.

Chambers said Fassler tried to leave the Inn parking lot in a late model green car and the customs agents, also in a late model green car, blocked his exit and gave chase.

McLennan, who was later treated for shock, apparently thought the agents' car was Fassler's vehicle, Chambers said.

Fassler was held on a federal warrant issued in San Diego as well as several local charges.

Police arrested him for possession marijuana, possession of a tear gas gun and assault with a deadly weapon. Chambers said the last charge stemmed from an alleged attempt by Fassler to ram the agents' car.

out back pay.

He said the teachers who do not show up for classes will be dropped from the payroll under a provision of California law. The AFT represents about 350, of San Francisco State's 1,300 faculty members.

Meanwhile in San Francisco Sunday, the Academic Senate of the State College system proposed some form of collective bargaining between the AFT and the State College Trustees to end the teachers' strike.

At present, state law prohibits collective bargaining between state employees and agencies of the state.

The Senate group asked the Trustees' Committee on faculty and staff affairs to approve a referendum among faculty members.

OEO to be faded from programs

By MIKE FEINSILBER
WASHINGTON (UPI)—Two key members of President Nixon's new Urban Affairs Council have indicated that the government's chief antipoverty agency will be allowed to fade out of existence this year.

Although Secretary Robert H. Finch of Health, Education and Welfare declined to say Sunday that the Office of Economic Opportunity (OEO) will not be extended before it expires June 30, he said some successful antipoverty programs "will be transferred" to other agencies and others will be absorbed by a "successor apparatus."

Secretary George Romney of Housing and Urban Development also hinted Sunday at OEO's dismemberment by saying "we are going to have a greater antipoverty program in this Administration than one just represented by OEO."

The former Michigan governor said, however, that there would be no elimination of the federal antipoverty program. Instead, he said, "the effort is going to be more effective and more widespread."

Finch and Romney, along with Transportation Secretary John A. Volpe, were interviewed on television (Meet the Press—NBC).

Volpe, warning of an impending "crisis in air transportation," said the Nixon Administration probably would seek creation of a trust fund to build more airports. He said the construction program, similar to the multibillion dollar interstate highway system established by the Eisenhower Administration, was urgently needed to alleviate air traffic congestion.

Finch said he foresees no "massive cuts" in welfare spending under President Nixon because current federal assistance programs for the poor have been "mandated by Congress." The former lieutenant governor of California said "it is not very realistic to look toward massive cuts in the near future."

But Finch said he would seek a national welfare standard to equalize payments around the country. He said "the enormous disparity between the states" has motivated welfare recipients to move from low-paying states to high-paying states.

The HEW secretary also said President Nixon would try to fulfill a campaign pledge to let persons receiving social security continue to work and have outside incomes.

"We penalize people for working by taking away their social security payments," he said, "I think that is wrong."

Occupation of Chicago University continues

CHICAGO (UPI)—Sixty-one of the 300 students controlling the University of Chicago's Administration building were under suspension today but the occupation continued in defiance of the disciplinary action.

Those occupying the six-story building since last Thursday were backed by 1,000 "uncommitted" students and faculty members of the 8,600-student school who voted to urge that amnesty be given the demonstrators.

The protesters were visited Sunday by members of the Students for a Democratic Society and the Progressive Labor party, urging they drop their "student power" demands in favor of economic concessions to the poor.

Today, the demonstrators were to hold a news conference only for women reporters—to dramatize the issue involved in the firing of a woman sociology professor whose politics were radical. A spokesman also said 50 per cent of all reporters at future news conferences would have to be women.

The demonstrators discussed the Saturday night vote by the "uncommitted" students and faculty, and hotly debated the suggestions of the SDS and PLP, but seemed to be unconcerned by suspensions, which were temporary and could be appealed to the dean of students.

"We are not upset," said Janet Tenney, 22, Port Washington, N.Y., a senior physics student and one of the six spokesmen for the demonstrators.

"No names were given and, besides, we know that more than 61 summonses were given out," she said. Miss Tenney referred to summonses the university attempted to give the demonstrators after their occupation of the six-story building Thursday. The summonses ordered the students to appear before the school disciplinary committee, but those receiving them burned them or tore them up.

Sunday, the university said the suspensions were ordered "because of the failure of these 61 persons to discontinue a disruptive demonstration after having been notified that their conduct was disruptive and having been asked to cease that conduct."

Miss Tenney said, "Our attitude is to ignore the disciplinary committee because it is illegitimate. The fact that no names were given indicates that it is a blind act designed to demoralize the sit-in. 'We will not be demoralized.'"

The demonstration was sparked by the firing of a woman sociology professor, Mrs. Marlene Dixon, who acknowledged she is a radical. The students charged she was fired because of her politics; the university denied it.

Arab girls rampage in Gaza area

ISRAELI - OCCUPIED Gaza (UPI)—About 60 Arab high school girls rampaged today through the streets of Gaza, screaming guerrilla slogans, smashing windows and stoning buses and trucks.

A battalion of Israeli soldiers chased the girls from Saladin High School through the streets and back into their schoolyard. It was the fifth day of a miniature amazon uprising in the city next to Israel's Mediterranean Coast.

Sunday morning more than 100 girls massed at four high schools to protest the trial of three local women accused of working for the terrorist Arab Palestine Liberation Organization.

They quickly dismantled a wall, filled their arms with stones and ran shrieking through the streets, shouting anti-Israel slogans and pelting passing vehicles.

Egyptian flags and pictures of President Gamal Abdel Nasser were hoisted on school walls. The city's main street was blocked with boulders and planks of wood.

The girls showered the car of an Israeli officer with stones, smashing the windows and injuring a soldier inside.

Israeli troops were called up and a battle between the sexes began.

The soldiers, armed with truncheons, beat back the girls who were kicking, punching and still throwing stones. They herded them into their schoolyards.

Ambulances screamed up to the school gates and 95 were taken to the hospital, suffering from bruises, bloody noses and gashed heads.

The Ramle Elementary School and the El Zahra, Mustafa El Hafez and Falastin High Schools were closed for two days.

Early today, before the latest outbreak at Saladin the city was quiet. The streets were littered with stones and splintered wood. Torn posters fluttered on the school playgrounds; the gates were locked tight and the classrooms were empty.

of committee members to call a committee meeting and the use of data processing equipment.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield meanwhile flatly predicted Sunday that the 10 per cent income tax surcharge will be extended beyond its scheduled expiration date of June 30.

"There will be no tax cut this year," Mansfield said in a television interview (Issues and Answers—ABC).

Mansfield also suggested that restoration of diplomatic relations with Cuba, short of actually recognizing Fidel Castro's government was a "possibility" when it came to finding a way to end airplane hijackings to Cuba.

The issue is, for the moment, dead in the House since it is bottled up in a committee. Most observers believe the Senate will defeat the motion, at the expense of having to declare itself in favor of the 41 per cent hike.

The pay plan was the only major legislative issue before either chamber this week as Congress continued to wait for more guidance from the new administration.

Sen. Karl E. Mundt, R-S.D., said he would introduce a bill to reorganize the committee structure of Congress and update fiscal controls. A similar bill, offered in 1967 passed the Senate but was defeated in the House.

The reorganization proposal involves the internal working of Congress, including such things as reduction of Senate committee sizes, permitting a majority

Delegates refuse stand on Pike ban

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Delegates to the Episcopal Diocese of California's 119th convention have refused to take a stand on a controversial order banning retired Bishop James A. Pike from the pulpit.

The delegates also narrowly rejected church recognition of a young man's right to be a conscientious objector to a specific war such as Vietnam as they wound up their two-day meeting Sunday night.

The clergy and laymen representing Northern California Episcopalians voted to table a resolution asking Bishop C. Kilmer Myers to withdraw his request that diocese churches forbid their pulpits to Pike, his predecessor as head of the diocese.

It will now be up to the church's presiding bishops to take action on the ban if any action is to be taken before the next diocese convention a year from now.

Myers made his request to the Episcopal clergy after Pike married for the third time last December, Pike said at the time that Myers had approved the marriage. But Myers later said this was a misunderstanding.

Gentle 'monster' Boris Karloff dies

MIDHURST, England (UPI)—Boris Karloff, the gentle actor whose portrayal of "Frankenstein" and other monsters chilled millions of moviegoers, died Sunday in King Edward VII Hospital, he was 81.

Karloff was born William Henry Pratt at Dulwich, England Nov. 23, 1887. He had been in the hospital since last November but had previously been ill for some time.

His death ended a career that spanned more than a half century of movie, stage, and television acting.

Although he was best known for the Frankenstein role, he also appeared in 1,400 Broadway performances of "Arsenic and Old Lace," "The Linden Tree," "The Shop at Sly Corner," and "Peter Pan."

A slender six-footer with a slight stoop, Karloff away from the screen was a quiet, soft-spoken man who loved reading, gardening, and poetry.

Intelligence officer set for Pueblo inquiry

By JACK V. FOX
CORONADO, Calif. (UPI)—Cmdr. Lloyd M. Bucher, refreshed by a three-day weekend with his family, returned today to the inquiry into the loss of his ship and testimony by his intelligence officer.

Lt. Stephen R. Harris, 21, who headed the Pueblo's "spook unit" when the ship was seized by North Korean gunboats, was to testify secretly for 90 minutes before the hearing was opened to the public.

Bucher was tense and pale during last week's sessions of the court of inquiry, and he relaxed during the weekend on a trip with his wife, Rose, and their sons, Michael, 16, and Mark, 14.

A close family friend said it was their "first real trip together" since Bucher and the 81 other surviving crewmen of the intelligence ship were released by the North Koreans.

Bucher said he is being treated fairly by the court of inquiry but the strain is obvious. A Navy neuropsychiatrist has been stationed in the hearing room to make sure Bucher is not overtaxed.

At times, tears welled in Bucher's eyes and his voice cracked as he told of the beatings and mental torture suffered by himself and his crew during 11 months of captivity in North Korea.

Sunset Chevrolet fights inflation

Camaro Sport Coupe

Buy this Camaro for $101.00 less than last year's with comparable equipment

The economics are quite simple. Volume. Sell a lot of cars and you can sell them for a lot less.

Take our Camaro Sport Coupe. Add to it such popular items as a big 250-hp V8, power disc brakes, Powerglide, head restraints, whitewalls and wheel covers.

Together, they add up to a savings of $101.00* off last year's price. And that's only the beginning.

Show up for our Value Showdown, and you'll find out why our competition wishes it were the end.

218 Viet Cong killed in battle near Saigon

By JACK WALSH
SAIGON (UPI)—In battling around Saigon, U.S. forces killed 218 Viet Cong but some 400 guerrillas ambushed an UC denies charges by sheriff

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI) — The University of California politely disputed charges Sunday by Alameda County Sheriff Frank Madigan that the school administration has failed to discipline student strikers.

In a letter to the university Board of Regents, Madigan claimed the administration; "has taken no action to discipline individuals" since the strike began Jan. 22.

The sheriff said the militants' actions were "a manifest and continuing violation of the law," and the school knew the identities of the students involved.

Deputies and other law officers were called to the campus last Wednesday and Thursday to clear picket lines blocking campus entrances. Two persons were arrested on misdemeanor charges.

Berkeley chancellor Roger Heyns made no comment on the charges other than to say he would forward the letter to the regents.

However, a spokesman at the university's public information office rebutted Madigan's claims saying, "The university has been working diligently to solve the problems of keeping order on the Berkeley campus."

The spokesman noted that following the last student crisis three months ago, 170 students were disciplined. Seven of them were dismissed and 31 suspended.

"In the current protest," he said "we have already identified at least 25 students who have broken university rules and they will be cited under disciplinary procedure."

The university reply continued: "We are also cooperating carefully and closely with police in the enforcement of law on campus. The fact that Sheriff Madigan's men have been on campus in the last few days, along with other police, is evidence of this. They were there because the university had asked them to come and help its own police to enforce the law."

Madigan's letter warned the university may turn into "another San Francisco State" unless the university uses its administrative powers quickly and effectively."

County studies new oil recovery plan

Whether the massive oil eruption off the Santa Barbara area will cause any reaction to an on-shore water flooding program proposed by various oil companies in the north county remains to be seen, county officials said today.

County Public Works Director Norman Caldwell has been given the task of making a report and possible recommendation on an oil recovery proposal placed before county authorities in the Cat Canyon area. He is conferring with the county petroleum engineer and county water consultant.

The County Water Agency has been informed the oil companies wish to engage in water flooding to the extent of about 116 acre feet per day (an acre foot of water is water covering an acre area one foot in depth).

The oil companies announced it would be a "joint venture program" and asked if the county had any objections.

County officials say they are skeptical that the oil companies can develop that much water a day from underground sources. They point out the Santa Maria Valley agricultural area has — up until the last flooding rains, experienced a condition where more water is being used than is being replaced by percolation.

City Council agenda

At its meeting tomorrow evening beginning at 7:30 p.m. in City Hall, the City Council will act on and discuss a wide variety of topics including these:

HIGHWAY
At the request of Harley Craig, chairman of the Chamber of Commerce Highway Committee, the Council is being asked to set dates for public hearings on the proposed realignment of Highway 246.

According to Craig, the State Highway Dept. is presently working on studies regarding the realignment and is requesting the public hearings to facilitate their work.

The proposed realignment begins in the vicinity of Cebada Canyon turnoff, located at the stop sign east of the Mission. It would cross the Santa Ynez River and join the present alignment between Lompoc and Surf, Craig explained.

BIDS
The city is seeking to purchase a soda ash feeder and dissolver for use at the city water plant. According to purchasing agent Dave Weil, the one positive bid received from seven invitations came from the B.I.F. Company in the amount of $12,224. The bid is higher than the $11,000 budgeted for the item. As a consequence the company has been requested to eliminate some of the equipment listed in the bid to bring the price in closer alignment with the amount budgeted. The present bid offer is $11,400 plus sales tax. Council is being requested to approve the purchase.

The city purchasing agent also is scheduled to give the Council a report on bid awards for the installation of street lighting. The work is a part of a long range plan to completely update the city's street lighting.

City Administrator Gene Wahlers will report to Council on bids for landscaping work to be done at the new city library on East North Avenue. The project is one of the final steps to be completed prior to the opening of the $600,000 facility.

BAND SHELL
Administrator Wahlers also will present a report to the City Council giving design alternatives for a band shell to be constructed at Ryon Park. Council two weeks ago asked for additional information because cost estimates had been put at $10,000 but only $4,500 had been budgeted.

PUBLIC HEARING
A public hearing to consider any protests to installing improvements in the alley between K Street and L Street and Locust and Olive Avenues will be held Tuesday evening. The improvements are to be installed under provisions of the 1911 Act.

George A. Mate is asking Council to consider appealing a decision of the Planning Commission which resulted in his being denied a request to operate a radio, television and small household appliance service from his home at 1016 W. Cherry Ave. Council is expected to set a public hearing on the matter for Feb. 18.

PROCLAMATIONS
Mayor Robert D. MacClure is expected to proclaim Feb. 18 as Student Government day and at the same meeting to set Feb. 16-22 as "Engineers' Week."

REPORTS
Recreation superintendent Jack Anderson will give Council a status report on a proposal to construct new tennis courts at Ryon Park.

Concern expressed earlier by Councilman Richard K. Jacoby that the city's bulldozer at the land fill operation be covered when not in use to protect it from the weather resulted this week in the city administrator recommending that a tarpaulin be used to cover the seat and engine compartment.

In a special report prepared by finance officer Marvin Loney, it was noted that the city's income has been increased by $235,390 since 1963 as a result of the city investing its temporarily idle and reserve funds. During Fiscal Year 1967-1968 the city realized a profit of $33,935 through its investment program, the report shows.

Sr. citizen housing on city agenda

A resolution approving special housing for senior citizens living in the city will be before City Council when it meets Tuesday evening.

The matter initially came up Jan. 14 when a proposal came before Council asking that mobile homes in the city be used to meet the needs of senior citizens who require government assistance. Officials explained that the government would inspect the housing qualifying for the program and would lease the housing from private owners. The homes then would be sub-leased to those in need of assistance, the spokesman said.

Council members all appeared to favor the program but several members balked at limiting the qualifying housing to mobile type homes.

As a result of council's attitude, the resolution now before the body makes possible the leasing of all types of housing.

A spokesman for the Housing Authority, which will assume responsibility for administering the program, said that all forms of housing could qualify but that trailers had initially been suggested because of their availability.

Mrs. Delbert Price, president of the Senior Citizens Club, came out strongly in favor of the program and requested that council give the program strong backing. She said from 10-20 local elderly citizens needed the assistance immediately. The council resolution is needed before the Federal government will approve the program.

Art is change Leslie Mayer experiments

By WILMA JACK
Staff Writer

With all the zap and color of Fourth of July fireworks, artist Leslie Mayer has launched into a series of "celebration" paintings. In a complete departure from her realistic painting, she has rocketed into the arcane universe of abstract. But only temporarily, and "just for fun." Her serious work continues on a steady basis.

Currently she has about six abstracts in her home studio at 3350 Via Dona. Variant conglomerates of surrealist whirls, bursts, circles, they are crowned with names rapidly conceived like their creation: "Festival," "Carnival," "Fourth of July." One is a Titanomachy between yellow-orange sunbursts and meteor-like explosions — a War Between the Worlds.

Leslie spreads a wet sheet limply upon the grass and squirts on RIT dyes with such "tools" as a sprinkling bottle, turkey baster, plastic squeeze bottle, or lambing nipple. The uneven levels of gress uproot the sheet into hills and valleys, allowing fresh paint to form in predominately circular patterns.

"One advantage," says Leslie, "is that you can cut off the part of the sheet with the best design." It can be stretched on Upsom board, preserved with varnish and framed.

While Leslie's "trade - mark" is realistic monochromes, usually produced with burnt sienna, raw umber and yellow ochre, her work is undergoing a transient period. Since October, 1968, she has been painting oils and acrylics in color.

She classifies herself as "an historical painter, whether by accident or design, I don't know." Though she depicts clowns and horses, she is perhaps best known for her barns and old buildings of the area. She has painted the La Rinconada School on Santa Rosa Road four times, but says she has received 25 more requests for the old one-room schoolhouse. It burned to the ground a few years ago.

She may paint the same subject several times, but each is different in composition. Her last effort of the school, an oil in color, was finished this January. With a mystical, nostalgic quality, four ghost children frolic around the deserted schoolhouse.

On display at Hunter's Inn in Santa Maria until Feb. 22 is a painting of the Dutra barn on Highway 246, framed with its own wood. When the barn was torn down, Leslie got permission from the owners to salvage some of the planks to make picture frames. According to Leslie, the redwood has weathered for 75 years and "it's like iron." Gray with age, green and yellow with moss, the frames have been left in their original condition. Nail holes give the effect of wormwood.

Many of her new paintings, while in color, are muted and softly blended as compared to harsher palettes and delineation of line. When it was remarked that some of her oils and acrylics seemed only a step removed from the monochromes, Leslie nodded: "I use what the Japanese call a 'queen' or dominating color," mixing it with varying degrees into other colors to "pull the painting together." The result is a harmonious whole.

"The White Colt" is a good illustration. The idea, taken from the upcoming movie by the same name, elaborates graphically the boy and white horse in a natural environment of primeval forest and field, shaded with intermingling pastels of lavender, blue, pink, yellow, off-white.

Leslie uses "whatever tool does the best job" — from palette knife, which she favors, to stencil and fan brushes for special jobs.

With the stencil brush, foliage can quickly be daubed in. Detailed lines for grass can be stroked in with a fan brush capable of supplying three colors at a time.

Leslie's easel time produces about 30 paintings a year. Since coming to Lompoc nine years ago with husband Eugene and their three children, Jean, Leslie and Andrea, Leslie shifted to fine art. She was formerly engaged in commercial art for 11 years in Santa Barbara and other areas.

Leslie likes to keep her own hours and for that reason, prefers fine art to commercial art and deadlines. During the week, she teaches art classes part-time for adults and children at a studio in Lompoc.

A woman who leads an articulate life, Leslie is "perfectly happy" in her environment.

TRADEMARK of Leslie Mayer are her historical paintings of area buildings, usually in monochromes, applied with palette knife. While continuing with this line of work, she has branched out into painting with color.

Fashions will be featured at annual S.B. orchid show

SANTA BARBARA — Fashion shows featuring clothing and accessories from approximately 30 stores will be a major feature of the 24th annual Santa Barbara International Orchid Show to be held March 14, 15, and 16 at the Earl Warren Showgrounds.

Fashions and accessories will reflect the orchid show's theme of "Serenity" — which means "the art of finding the unusual in unexpected places" — and promises to provide an especially interesting program this year.

The fashion shows will be staged in a spectacular center garden especially created for the show by Mercedes Flynn. Mrs. Flynn created the intricate four-tiered center garden which was a focal point of last year's show.

The showings, which were enthusiastically received when presented for the first time at the orchid show last year, will be presented on Friday and Saturday nights with matinees on Saturday and Sunday, according to Orval C. Bond, general manager.

The program will be under the direction of Bea Howorth, and will feature

Roth-Massa betrothal told

Announced today by Major and Mrs. Arthur J. Roth, 4032 Polaris, Vandenberg Village, is the engagement of their daughter, Louise Joy, to Richard J. Massa, Jr. of Santa Maria. The son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard J. Massa of Santa Maria, has just returned from serving more than four years with the U.S. Army as a member of the special forces, the Green Berets. He spent a year in Vietnam.

Miss Roth attended the University of New Mexico in Albuquerque, New Mexico, and Allan Hancock College, Santa Maria.

A spring wedding is planned by the couple.

Auxiliary sets Valentine party

The Ladies Auxiliary of the Lompoc Fleet Reserve Unit 292 will hold its regular meeting Wednesday, Feb. 5 at 7:30 p.m. in Veterans Memorial Hall. Hostesses will be Mrs. Harry Owens and Mrs. H.M. Mitchell.

Slated for Friday, Feb. 14 at the Golden Greek Restaurant is a Valentine luncheon. White elephant games will follow. Taking reservations, to be made by Feb. 10, are Mrs. Raymond Rains, 6-2229 and Mrs. William Bergman, 6-7387.

The Fleet Reserve Branch and Unit for the Lompoc area welcomes all retired or active Navy or Marine Corps families to their organization. Those interested are asked to call the Dallas W. Phelan home, 6-4191, or either of the telephone numbers given above.

15 professional women models, four men, and two children.

Show hours will be from 7 p.m. — 11 p.m., Friday, March 14; from 10 a.m. — 10 p.m., Saturday, March 15; and from 10 a.m. — 5 p.m., Sunday, March 16.

Admission will be 75 cents, with children under 12 admitted free with adults. Ample parking is available in the showgrounds at Los Positas Road and U.S. Highway 101.

Valentine banquet is Saturday

THE LORENS

Local high school students are invited to the church-sponsored Valentine banquet and musical program to be held Saturday, Feb. 8, at Loop's Restaurant. All students, singles or with dates, will be welcomed. An event of the evening will be the presentation of a Valentine gift to some lucky student present.

Co-operating are various church youth groups and their individual adult sponsors. Already responding to invitations are those of Christian and Missionary Alliance Church, Calvary Baptist, First Baptist, Foursquare, Valley Chapel and the Nazarene Church.

Introducing the program talent, Barbara and Greg Loren, formerly of Hollywood, will be Andy Toth, youth director for Alliance Church. Loren, a singer and actor, and his wife are now giving their time to gospel singing and testimonies through state-wide tours.

Banquet tickets must be purchased by Wednesday, Feb. 5 and may be obtained at Calvary Baptist Church, 3-1010, or Christian and Missionary Alliance Church, 6-3946. Student tickets are $2.50, adult sponsors tickets, $3.50.

Litterbugs are subject of Cub skit

Pantomiming the hazards created by litterbugs was the entertaining skit, "The Bubble Gum Kids," presented by Den 3 of Cub Scout Pack 167. Occasion was the monthly pack meeting last week in Calvary Baptist Church.

In a simulated campfire ceremony, four new Cubs: Bradley Hull, Barry Callaway, Garry Knacksted and Brian Moore, were presented with their bobcat awards and welcomed into the pack by Sgt. Charles Fuller.

Den 1 opened the meeting with the presentation of colors and the pledge, followed by invocation. Members and guests were welcomed by Den 2, singing the Pack Welcome Song. Webelos Ross Montgomery and Jim Burton sang to selections, "America the Beautiful" and "Battle Hymn of the Republic."

Cut Scout Mark Whelan was presented with his wolf award; Randy Oshima and Kevin Kelley received their bear badges; Greg Callaway, a gold arrow.

Webelos badges were given to Ross Montgomery, outdoorsman, naturalist, athlete, engineer, citizen; Jim Burton, artist, showman; Sidney Sexton, outdoorsman.

Receiving dinner stripes were Brent Knight and Ron Galloway. Their assistants will be Cub Scouts Craig Compton and Rocky Westbury.

Entering the Webelos den are Greg Galloway and Kevin Kelley, each presented with the official neckerchief and award.

Following the presentations, Webelos den led in several physical fitness exercises.

Announced as "Cub Scouts of the month," were Steve Masters, Mark Whelan, Kenneth Dwyer, Ross Montgomery.

Also announced was the annual "blue and gold banquet" of Pack 167, to be held at 6:30 p.m. Feb. 18, at Calvary Baptist Church.

Prayers closed the meeting prior to serving of refreshments. Under the sponsorship of Calvary Church, the pack cubmaster is Paul Masters. Den mothers are Jan Oshima and Marge Gunderson; Webelos leader, Tom Burton.

Coming and going

Sgt. and Mrs. Ronald Gray and daughter Pamela, Craig AFB, Ala., are visiting in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Belton J. Evans and daughter Pattie, 1401 W. Pear, prior to leaving for their assignment in Alaska.

Houseguests of Lt. Col. and Mrs. Thomas Chrones, 4084 Club House Road are her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Shaull of Lansing, Mich.

Meeting the Shaulls in Los Angeles and accompanying them to Lompoc for a week was her sister, Mrs. Ruth Bemis of Pasadena.

Teri Cooper of Santa Barbara, spent her 15th birthday weekend with her father and family, Dr. and Mrs. Donald Cooper, 480 St. Andrews Way.

Highlighting the weekend was horseback riding at the Country Club stables.

Landon Young to perform in concert

Landon Young, distinguished pianist, is returning to Santa Maria for a third concert. The artist performed a Beethoven sonata with the Santa Maria Symphony in the first concert ever given in Hancock's new Performing Arts Center. Occasion of his forthcoming return is his appearance as a guest artist with the University of California, Santa Barbara concert series being presented on the Allan Hancock College campus.

World-wide tours have brought Young warm praise from critics in the music capitals of three continents. The critics have applauded his sensitivity and warmth of touch as well as his technical virtuosity. The Vienna Kurier, for instance, describes Landon Young as a pianist "whose playing combines poetry and personality with perfection of technique." An honors student and successful musician himself, Young is now assistant professor of music at UCSB.

In his coming concert, he will play Bach's French Suite and Beethoven's Sonata in C, Opus 53. Following a short intermission, the program will conclude with works by Fricker, Chopin, and Prokofieff.

Sunday, Feb. 9, is the concert date; 4 p.m. the hour. Adult tickets are $1 and students, 50 cents, with discounts available to groups over 20 persons. Ticket reservations may be made by calling the Hancock box office.

Luncheon party fetes Sally Godwin

Honoring Mrs. Billy (Sally) Godwin, 410 S. N St., was the farewell luncheon held Friday in Vandenberg Van and Storage, Vandenberg Village. Hosting the event were Mr. and Mrs. Archie Nogle.

Relinquishing her employment with the company, Mrs. Godwin will await the arrival of an adopted child through the Santa Barbara Adoption Agency. The Godwins already have one daughter.

Luncheon guests included Sugi Smith Kathy Simpers, Betty Paves, Willadyne Bruzdowski, Mary Trotter, Jane Daly, Ben Greene and Dice Dodson.

Dear Abby

Buffalo man meets New York crackpot

DEAR ABBY: I am an ordinary man, single and 47, I was recently in New York on a bus travel tour and was having lunch alone in one of those automat restaurants when a woman of about 30 came and sat at my table and struck up a conversation. She started off by saying she knew I was a Catholic priest as she had seen me in a pulpit someplace and she never forgets a face. She kept calling me "Father."

I tried to tell her that I was not a priest, but she persisted. I told her three times to please quite calling me "Father," and I even showed her my identification, but it didn't help. It got to be so exasperating I finally hurried up my lunch and left. Abby, are there lots of crackpots like this in New York? And what is a person supposed to do in a situation like that?

DEAR FROM: New York has more crackpots (I call them "psychoceramics") than other cities because there are more people there. And the only way to handle them is to do as you did. Beat a hasty retreat.

ON LEAVE following ten weeks of basic training at Recruit Training Command (Women) United States Naval Training Center, Bainbridge, Maryland, is Darlene Joy Morris, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald C. Morris, 1685 Calle Nueva. Miss Morris was graduated as a WAVE during a military review held Jan. 24 and will now report to the U.S. Naval Station, Philadelphia, Pa. for general duty administration. Seaman Morris received instruction in naval orientation, naval history, citizenship and current events, naval ships, aircraft and armament, navy jobs and training, self improvement, first aid, physical training and military bearing, and drill, during her indoctrination period. A graduate of Cabrillo High School, the Lompoc WAVE enlisted at the U.S. Navy Recruiting Station at Santa Maria for three years and was sworn in at Los Angeles.

DEAR ABBY: I'll get right to the point, I am 23 and am practically engaged to a wonderful guy. We've gone together for nearly a year and I have stuck to my "hands off" policy, which was not easy.

My question: How much should I tell my fiancé about my past? To be honest with you, I am not lily-white. (There have been several men.) Should I tell him how many, and who they were?

I hate to lie, but I don't want this thrown back in my face later on. Please help me.

ITHACA DEAR ITHACA: It's not necessary to provide your fiancé with the names and numbers of the previous players. I am not suggesting that you lie. Simply tell him (if he asks) that your "past" is a closed chapter, and he will have to accept you as you ARE — or not at all.

DEAR ABBY: Please say something to people who have all day to do their shopping, but wait to do it when we working folks have to do ours.

Have you ever tried to do your marketing right after work to find yourself standing behind a line of homemakers, still in their curlers, looking for something to cook fast before the old man comes home? Or some tired, dirty man, just off the job, getting grub for dinner because his wife got a Charley horse in her tongue from drinking all day with the girl next door.

Try it some time, you will get the urge to kill. Thank you, FURIOUS IN PRESCOTT, ARIZ.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "LOSING OUT" IN BEVERLY HILLS: No intelligent, worthwhile man will abandon the company of a mature, interesting woman simply because a "young doll" comes on the scene. There are too many young dolls sitting at home while fifty-ish women continue to pick off the best bachelors.

For Abby's new booklet "What Teen-Agers Want To Know," send $1.00 to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal., 90069.

Soup pot yields surprise mixture

A "surprise" soup pot was that to which Brownies of Troop 22 added their favorite varieties recently as they met in the home of Mrs. Herbert Hochstatter. Completing the luncheon menu were crackers, Koolaid and roasted marshmallows.

Assisting the hostess with the 19 members were Mrs. Phillip Comella and Mrs. Herbert McNaughton.

Troop members are practicing a French marionette song to be presented at Girl Scout "thinking day" Feb. 22 at Lompoc Jr. High School.

Billy Must Live His TV Role

A SIMPLE LEAF can inspire wonder in a mentally retarded child. In a scene from "Teacher, Teacher," David McCallum explains how Mother Nature fashions foliage to Billy Schulman, who, in the drama and in real life, suffers from mental retardation.

By JOAN CROSBY
NEA Entertainment Editor

NEW YORK — (NEA) — David McCallum, who had been searched out in the vast recesses of an upper New York film studio by 13-year-old Billy Schulman, asked Billy to sit in on his interview.

David, formerly the delight of teen-agers as a result of his role as Illya on "The Man From U.N.C.L.E.," led the way into his dressing room, furnished in early Alcatraz, and talked with and about Billy, a retarded child.

Billy is playing just that in "Teacher, Teacher," an original drama by Allan Sloane to be seen on the Hallmark Hall of Fame over NBC-TV on Feb. 5. David plays the teacher.

"I read a story in the paper about you," David said to Billy. "It said you were susceptible to colds, but you're the only one in the cast who didn't get a cold."

"I was promised I could see tonight's rushes," Billy said.

Out Again, In Again

Before you let down the hems on your short skirts, take a look at what's happening in Paris. The short skirt, which had been labeled "out" at the beginning of fall, has come back in, and there's quite a bit of speculation that it may stay in through Spring.

Key Interest

This spring, pants with legs ranging from a slight flair to the elephant width will provide a key interest in the sportswear category.

This spring's color picture will emphasize red, white and blue, then branch out into strong shades and feminine pastels, such as peach and aqua.

Knits Are on Scene

Knit dresses take shape on the current fashion scene. There are empire styles, shaped bareback styles, smocked midriff styles and shaped bodydress styles with a high turtle neck—all knit.

"Billy is very responsive," David said. "The mentally retarded are responsive, they are cheerful and they do cope with life with the right teaching."

"When I was first offered this role, it never occurred to me the child playing the part would not be retarded."

Kraft Music Hall on NBC-TV on Feb. 5.

But what it was, for Eydie Gorme, was a rough time. What it was for Steve Lawrence was an idea come to life.

What It Was, Was Love is something brand new for TV. It's an original record album, an "albumusical," just being released by RCA Victor. It was written by Gordon Jenkins for Steve and Eydie at Steve's request. Steve thought it would be visually exciting and Dwight Hemion and Gary Smith, who produce the weekly Kraft shows, agreed.

But for Eydie, Steve's loving and now very thin wife ("I'm never going to gain weight again," she says), the show was rough.

"There's one scene where there is a chase on horseback through Central Park," Eydie said. "My horse tried to kill me. He hated me. There is Steve riding through the park like he's auditioning for Bonanza. He is a definite John Wayne type. And there's my horse trying to kill me. They took me off the horse and now there I am running through the park with Steve chasing me on horseback."

Another scene was shot on the frozen Central Park lake. "We walked across it," Steve said, "and I felt young married show business teams. But if you had never heard of them, and got involved in a casual conversation, you would figure Steve as a nine-to-five businessman who runs home to his wife and two sons after a day at the office. Eydie seems perfect as a concerned mother, having friends over for bridge, and working for charity (which she does).

They're young (if being in the early 30s is still considered young today), aware and nicely square.

"I think Steve and Paul Newman are the only two men in the industry still wearing the same style suits and ties," Eydie said.

Steve added, "If I hear one more guy, 30 years my senior, trying to be hip and saying 'I'm going to tell it like it is, I'll throw up. How can anyone tell you where it's at' if they don't know where it's been?"

Now warmed up to the subject, Eydie said, "I have a feeling it's all coming back our way. Our show, 'Golden Rainbow' (which just closed after a run of over a year on Broadway), was packed with people under 20. It wasn't a hip show by today's standards."

Or, as Steve summed up their thinking, "The trouble with the generation gap is that it's not big enough."

By ROGER DOUGHTY
NEA Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK — (NEA) — Mrs. George Economou and Shakespeare have something in common. At least, that's the way Mrs. Economou sees it. "If the Bard were alive today," she says, flashing a sardonic smile, "we'd probably be good friends. He'd be writing for the so-called 'new theater,' just like me."

Mrs. Economou, it should be noted, is not some dowdy housewife from the Bronx with a fondness for Avon's leading literary light. She's better known as Rochelle Owens, super underground lady playwright. She has also been called The High Priestess of Shock and a lot of other things that can't be printed, at least in this paper.

In the opinion of Miss Owens, Shakespeare is "bawdy, sexy and dirty," all of which she in turn has been labeled by one critic or another during the last few years. She has also been called brilliant and a host of other adjectives by many of those who have seen her plays, which include "Beelch," "Futz" and "He Wants Shih."

Rochelle's writings have been especially well-received by college audiences, which seem more willing than the off-campus variety to accept her kind of thing. All of which is quite understandable to Rochelle, who spends plenty of time on campus since she's the wife of a professor of medieval literature at Long Island University.

Rochelle Owens
"Maybe there's hope for me in 400 years."

With "Beelch" currently running off Broadway, "Futz" being made into a movie by director Tom O'Horgan (he's the man who teased "Hair" into a hit), "He Wants Shih" being considered for a run in New York and many of her plays being presented by local theater groups around the country, Miss Owens is very hard to ignore, whether you like her style or not.

"My plays," the author explains, "are wrapped in metaphorical symbolism. You can't just take them straight. If you do, 'Futz' comes out being a drama about a guy who falls in love with a pig. When the show was running here a lot of people wandered into the theater expecting to see somebody kissing a pig. It served them right."

Getting back to Shakespeare, Miss Owens, who has done some digging on the subject, says, "The reviewers of his day said his stuff was filthy and useless, but it stood the test of time. Today most people have an inauthentic reverence for the old masters. Maybe there's hope for me in 400 years."

While she's waiting, Miss Owens hopes to see Broadway crumble.

"Broadway has had it," she claims. "It represented the theater of lies and it's gasping its last breath."

But Broadway is not alone when it comes to getting a rap from Rochelle. She also doesn't dig movies or television.

"There are a few good TV shows," she admits, "but you have to look hard to find them. Personally, I like Bullwinkle Moose and Rocky the Flying Squirrel, although I do feel that Rocky deserves better billing."

Miss Owens' knock on the forms of entertainment as we know them today is that all offer, or so she feels, "nothing more than titillation in the most perverse and dishonest manner. I get sick of the sly winking and the solicitousness."

If there's one thing Miss Owens' plays don't have, it's sly winking. She tells it like she thinks it is and with gusto. Too much gusto for a lot of people.

"I get letters complaining about the terrible things I'm doing to my poor, innocent audiences," she says, "and they make me laugh. I'm out to slaughter the theater of lies with my art, with immense virtue. People do get hurt when they're caught in the middle of a slaughter."

Despite her rugged outlook on life, Miss Owens has her soft spots, too. It didn't bother her when one reviewer claimed that symbolism had to be used in "Futz" because the director couldn't find a pig willing to play the part ("Not a bad line," she admits), but some of the nastier things written about "Futz" and now "Beelch" have been known to get her down.

"When I get mad," she claims, "I throw chunks of rock candy against the wall. I have the stuff all over my apartment. Sometimes the whole place is granulated."

When it comes to commenting on other playwrights of the new theater, Miss Owens is unusually still.

"I'd rather not discuss them while they're still alive," she says.

She really means that in a nice way. But, like everything else Mrs. George Economou says or writes, it has to be taken with a large dose of metaphorical symbolism.

Two Ways to Soften Baby's Plastic Pants

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY—Tell Mrs. L. C., who wanted to know how to soften her baby's plastic pants, that she could put them in the dryer with a few diapers, set it on "mild" and let it run for about five minutes. Watch carefully as they may have to be removed before the diapers are dry.—JOAN

DEAR POLLY—Baby's plastic pants always seem to get stiff with age and lose their softness. I put them between two small towels and press with a hot iron until the desired softness has returned. Be sure the pants are completely covered by the towels. A hot iron could ruin them.—BARBARA

DEAR POLLY—I would like to know how to wash ceilings with rough surfaces. When I wash my kitchen ceiling, pieces of the sponge I use are left on it. If I use a cloth, it tears as I wash. I dread the thought of the next cleaning when I will have to spend all morning washing and picking sponge off the ceiling.—MARY

Dressing room talk centers around who will battle UCLA

By United Press International
The talk around college basketball dressing rooms these days is not how far UCLA will go in the NCAA tourney finals, but who will face the Bruins in the championship round.

UCLA won its 32nd consecutive game Saturday night by routing Stanford 98-61 with the help of Lew Alcindor's 27 points and 20 rebounds.

Alcindor, gunning for a third season of All America recognition, leads the Uclans against Washington and Washington State this weekend as the team attempts to stretch its consecutive Pacific Eight Conference streak to 38. These two rivals are 4-1 in league play, behind UCLA's 4-0 record.

Purdue appeared a good prospect to become the Big 10 representative in the NCAA tournament as the Boilermakers topped Ohio State 95-85 to take sole possession of first place in the conference.

Second-ranked North Carolina raised its record to 14-1 and continued leading the Atlantic Coast Conference by ripping Maryland 107-87 on Bill Buntin's 30 points. Even if the Tar Heels win the ACC regular season title, they'll still have to go through a league tournament for the right to enter NCAA championship play.

Davidson, kingpin in the Southern Conference and ranked fourth in the nation, dropped a 76-61 decision to an Iowa team led by Glenn Vidnovic's 23 points. The Wildcats' loss lowered their league margin over East Carolina to only a half-game.

Kentucky, No. 5, holds a two-game lead in the Southeastern Conference and is one of the nation's powerhouses with the ability to give UCLA a good game should they meet in the title match. The Wildcats stunned Vanderbilt 103-89 Saturday night.

Among the independents who could wind up high in the NCAA competition are seventh-ranked

St. John's of New York, a 65-49 winner over Temple and 10th-rated LaSalle, which swamped Loyola of Louisiana 102-65.

In other games involving the top 10, New Mexico toppled sixth-ranked New Mexico State 68-66 and eighth-ranked Illinois stopped Wisconsin 86-73. Third-ranked Santa Clara was idle, as was Villanova, tied with LaSalle for 10th place.

Greek vaulter begins to soar

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI)—Winning for Chris Papanicolaou and Charlie Greene at the Oregon Invitational Track and Field Meet carried a different appeal.

The 27-year-old Greek, who is a senior at San Jose State, wants to become the world's best amateur in the pole vault, predicting he will clear 18 feet this year. He made it over 17 feet, 1 1/2 inches Saturday and then barely missed setting a new world indoor record of 17 feet, 6 inches when he brushed off the bar on his way down on his second try.

"The spirit of track and field," he said in answer to a question about turning professional, "is different—not like football or baseball—and being a professional has no appeal to me."

Greene, who captured the 60-yard dash for the third straight year with a meet tying 6.0 admits frankly he wants and "needs the money" professional track and field could provide. And he thinks it can work.

"It's like anything else," he said. "Everywhere there's a money gimmick and this can work. Did they give the AFL a chance when it was drawing a few hundred people?"

Amateur Greene despite his contention he just came to the meet to "see my friends" did run hard enough to nip AAU indoor king Bill Gaines, also timed in 6.0.

George Carty of San Jose State was another star of the meet, winning the 60-yard high hurdles in 7.0, one-tenth second faster than the old invitational mark set by Ralph Boston.

Neal Steinhauer was more than two feet off his indoor world record but still won the shot put with a toss of 65 feet, 8 1/4 inches.

Other track winners were Ralph Doubell, Australia, in the 1,000 yard run, 2:11.1; Wade Bell, Eugene, Ore., in the mile, 4:08.9; Greg Marks, Oregon State, in the 500-yard run, 58.7, and Steve Savage of Oregon in the special mile, 4:11.4, a new

Nicklaus captures tourney

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (UPI)—By now Jack Nicklaus must be used to the crowd rooting for the other fellow.

He didn't much care Sunday when more than 15,000 fans followed hometown favorite Gene Littler around the Torrey Pines Municipal Course in the final round of the $165,000 Andy Williams-San Diego Open.

The big thing that counts though is who was first at the pay window when it was all over. Nicklaus was front and center to collect the $30,000 prize and Littler, who gave it the old college try on the 18th, was second in line and took home $17,100.

Littler, who won the 1954 San Diego Open as an amateur and has failed ever since to win it as a pro, started the final round on a sun-drenched day two strokes ahead of Jack.

Dave Stockton and Tommy Aaron shot final round 70s to tie at 286 and collect $8,850 each, while Dow Finsterwald was all alone at 287 on a final round 71 to win $6,150.

U.S. Open champ Lee Trevino, Larry Ziegler and Phil Rodgers tied at even par 288 and won $4,875 each. Don January, Bruce Devlin, Bob Charles and Dick Lotz tied at 289 for $3,325 each, and Bobby Luna, Bob Dickson, Harold Henning, Randy Petri and Tony Jacklin tied at 290 for $2,250 each.

Washington State beat Oregon State and Washington in the open mile relay with a time of 3:21.5.

In field events, Perutti Pousi, Brigham Young, won the long jump at 24 feet, 3-4 inch; Don Lindsey, San Jose State, the high jump at 6 feet, 10 inches, and Dave Smith, Pacific Coast Club, the triple jump at 48 feet, 8 inches. Dick Fosbury of the back "flop" fame was a disappointing fourth at 6 feet, 8 inches in the high jump.

Lola-Chevy wins race at Daytona

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (UPI)—The race does not always go to the swift, a pair of dark blue Lola-Chevy T70s proved this weekend in the 24 hours of Daytona.

This race went to the most durable, and to the surprise of thousands, a West German factory Porsche was not among the leaders when the checkered flag dropped Sunday, signaling an end to the 8th annual Daytona Endurance Test—longest and, at $86,000, the richest of its kind in America.

Even the winning Lola drivers, Mark Donohue and Chuck Parsons, were surprised that the Porsches from Stuttgart were not around at the finish—the last departed after only 18 hours with a broken intermediate shaft.

Parsons was driving and Donohue sleeping when the final Porsche was removed from the competition. Donohue said he was awakened and told the Penske-Lola was the leading car still running, although it still trailed the Porsche.

"If you had almost no chance of winning and suddenly you were given a chance at $15,000, how would you feel?" Donohue grinned. "It was just a question of keeping our car together and running out the laps we were behind."

Third place overall and top spot in the over two-liter touring class went to a tough little Pontiac Firebird driven by the team of Jerry Titus and Jon Ward. Fourth was a Porsche 911T driven by Bruce Jennings of Towson, Md., and Herb Watson of Hewlett Bay, N.Y. another Porsche 911, driven by Bert Everett of Doylestown, Pa., and Alan Johnson of Corona Del Mar, Calif., finished fifth.

Donohue gave much of the credit for the success of the winning car to Parsons, a last-minute substitution for Ronnie Buckman, who broke a finger in a motorcycle accident. "I think he did a terrific job of adapting to the car and to Daytona," said Donohue of his driving partner, who never before had competed either at night or at Daytona.

Aggies end 44-year loss record; Broncos continue to sail along

West Coast Basketball Roundup

By United Press International
It was awhile in coming but the Aggies of the University of California at Davis finally beat St. Mary's.

In 27 previous meetings extending back to 1925, the Aggies were never able to come out ahead of the Gaels in a basketball game.

They turned the tables Saturday with a 62-54 triumph and in the process broke a four-game losing streak. The Aggies nursed a slim lead throughout the first half which ended in their favor 30-26. St. Mary's scored a basket to start the second half but the Aggies took advantage of the Gaels' rustiness from a two week layoff and quickly extended the lead to 15 points to win handily.

Bob Johnson and Alan Steed paced UC Davis with 16 points each while Gary Chamberlain got 13 for St. Mary's.

In other action, UCLA and Santa Clara, as expected, remained unbeaten.

The top-ranked Bruins ripped California, 109-74, Friday and then trounced Stanford, 98-61, the following night. Lew Alcindor went past the 2,000-point career mark as he racked up 32 the first night and 27 against the Indians.

The victories raised UCLA's winning streak to 32, including 16 this season, and 79th in 80 games and also gave coach Johnny Wooden 701 career triumphs.

Santa Clara upped its season mark to 17-0 Saturday night with a 103-72 rout of Hayward State. Six-foot-nine center Dennis Awtrey was awesome as he hit 15 of 17 shots from the floor and wound up with 38 points.

In other Pacific 8 Conference results, Southern California, trading opponents with UCLA, could fare no better than a split. The Trojans lost to Stanford, 66-56, and then turned back California, 98-70.

Non-conference clashes saw Washington down Montana 78-71, Washington State down Gonzaga, 85-61, and Oregon State outclassed winless Portland, 78-57. Oregon was idle.

Small college powerhouse, Nevada, Las Vegas, got 27 and 25 point performances from Tom Watkins and Donnie Lyons to down Long Beach State, 91-86, in an overtime contest. The victory gave the Rebels a 15-3 season record while Long Beach State is now 17-2.

Rockets pin Oaks with loss

By United Press International
The Denver Rockets seem to be the only match for mighty Oakland in the American Basketball Association.

Denver pinned the Oaks with a 119-105 defeat Sunday night, marking the third time this season the Rockets have halted the Western Division leaders. Oakland has lost only six games in all against 38 victories.

Larry Jones scored 29 of his game-high 39 points in the second half to help Denver overcome a six-point halftime lead. Oakland star Rick Barry was ejected in the third period after drawing two technical fouls.

Minnesota, the Eastern Division leader, also ran into trouble Sunday and dropped a 94-87 decision to the Houston Mavericks, the last place team in the West. Newly acquired Levern Tart led Houston with 20 points.

The Pipers maintained their half-game advantage over second-place Kentucky, however, as the Colonels had their five-game winning streak snapped by Dallas, 104-101. Glen Combs led the winners with 31 points.

In other games, the Miami Floridians scored 40 points in the final quarter to turn back the Indiana Pacers 130-113 and Walt Simon scored 28 points to carry the New York Jets to a 96-85 victory over the Los Angeles Stars.

Karl Liimo scored a career high 34 points to spark Brigham Young over St. Francis, Pa., 98-85, in an intersectional game. In addition to Santa Clara's thumping of Hayward State, two other West Coast Athletic Conference teams posted wins. San Jose ran over Nevada, Reno, 109-85, and U.C. Santa Barbara, tripped San Diego State, 93-80. Loyola did not fare as well, bowing to Arizona State, 91-71.

Kings take on Blues after win over Seals

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI)—The Los Angeles Kings looked forward with renewed confidence today to their meeting Tuesday with the St. Louis Blues, leaders in the National Hockey League's West division, after their big win over the Oakland Seals Saturday.

The Kings came from behind in the second period on a four-goal rally to defeat the second place Seals 8-5 to reduce Oakland's lead over Los Angeles to three points.

The eight goals were the most the Kings have scored this season. Their previous high was six goals, attained twice. The combined score of 13 goals was a new Forum record for one game.

The hard-fought match was highlighted by a fight in the final period between Bill Hicke of the Seals and Dale Rolfe of the Kings with referee Bill Briday ejecting both men. The penalty carried an automatic $100 fine.

The Kings line of Eddie Joyal, Bill Fleet and Real Lemieux collected four of five goals to overcome a 3-2 Oakland advantage in the first period and clinched the victory.

For Oakland, Hicke raised his season mark to 50 points with a third period goal and an assist.

GRAEBNER WINS

Warriors hold out for a win

By United Press International
The San Francisco Warriors are bent on a Western Division playoff berth even if they have to work overtime to accomplish their mission.

That's just what the Warriors did Sunday night, going three overtime periods to defeat the Los Angeles Lakers 122-117 to acquire a two-game cushion over San Diego and Chicago, tied for fourth place in the division.

Jim King provided the winning margin during the third extra session with a basket and three foul shots.

In other National Basketball Association games, Baltimore beat Detroit 128-106, New York edged Boston 95-94 in a game which saw Celtic player-coach Bill Russell sprain his right knee, Philadelphia stopped Chicago 112-104, Atlanta ripped San Diego 115-103 and Phoenix nipped Milwaukee 122-121.

King's performance was all the more remarkable since he was removed from the game earlier because of an injury and returned when Ron Williams fouled out. Nate Thurmond and Rudy LaRusso each scored 24 points for the Warriors. Mel Counts had 31 for Los Angeles. Ray Scott, Earl Monroe and Wes Unseld combined for 72 points to give Baltimore its fifth victory over Detroit this season. Scott was high with 26, Dave Bing led the Pistons with 25 points.

A layup by Dave DeBusschere with 4:53 remaining proved to be the winning points for New York as Boston lost it leadership when Russell was carried off the court. Dick Barnett netted 24 points, but it took two of Bill Bradley's four game points to insure the win as he sank a pair of foul shots with 14 seconds to go. Boston's John Havlicek led all scorers with 25 points.

Chet Walker's five consecutive points erased a 104-103 deficit and pushed Philadelphia to victory over Chicago. The 76ers went on to score the last nine points of the game. Wally Jones was Philadelphia's big gunner with 27 points. Bob Boozer had 25 for Chicago.

Atlanta moved to within 3 1/2 games of Los Angeles on Lou Hudson's 35-point production. Elvin Hayes scored 32 for the losing Rockets. Gail Goodrich's 27 points, four of them in the final 19 seconds, beat Milwaukee.

Boston icemen maintain East lead without Orr

By MARTIN LADER
UPI Sports Writer
Winning has become such an easy trick for the Boston Bruins that they can even do it without their prize magician.

Star defenseman Bobby Orr was given the night off Sunday but it made little difference as Boston stretched its unbeaten streak to 17 games with a 4-2 victory over the Detroit Red Wings.

The triumph enabled the Bruins to maintain their six-point lead over Montreal in the East Division of the National Hockey League and moved them to within six games of tying the league record they set in 1940-41 of 23 consecutive games without a loss.

The St. Louis Blues stretched their West Division lead to 20 points over idle Oakland by beating the Toronto Maple Leafs 5-3 and in other Sunday games Montreal defeated the Chicago Black Hawks 6-4, the New York Rangers blasted the Pittsburgh Penguins 7-3 and the Minnesota North Stars edged the Philadelphia Flyers 3-2. All-time Series heroes added to Hall of Fame

By FRED DOWN
UPI Sports Writer
NEW YORK (UPI)—Sluggers Stan Musial and Roy Campanella will have company when they are inducted in the Hall of Fame next July from a couple of rugged old pitchers from baseball's Roarin' 20's.

Waite Hoyt, one of the New York Yankees' all-time World Series heroes, and Stan Coveleskie, who won three games for the Cleveland Indians in the 1920 series, were elected unanimously Sunday by the Veterans Committee of the Baseball Writers Association of America.

"You can't top being elected to the Hall of Fame," said the 69-year-old Hoyt, who learned of his election just as he finished playing 18 holes of golf in Clearwater, Fla. "There's nothing beyond it. It's a real privilege."

"It makes me feel just swell," said the 78-year-old Coveleskie who spent most of the weekend fishing in South Bend, Ind. "I figured I'd get in sooner or later and just kept hoping each year would be the one."

Both veterans said they "wouldn't miss being present" when the official induction ceremonies are held in Cooperstown, N.Y., next July.

Hoyt, who coined the phrase "It's great to be young and a Yankee," won six World Series games from 1921 through 1928 and compiled a 237-182 lifetime record. He was a 19-game winner for the Yankees when they won their first pennant in 1921 and won between 17 and 23 games in six seasons between 1921 and 1928. His best seasons were 1927 and 1928 when he had 22-7 and 23-7 records, respectively.

A native of Shamokin, Pa., Coveleskie was a spitball pitcher who compiled a 216-142 lifetime record during a career spent mostly with the Indians. He was with the Indians from 1916 through 1924 with successive win-and-loss records of 16-14, 19-13, 22-13, 24-12, 24-14, 23-13, 17-14, 13-14 and 15-16. He was traded to the Washington Senators in 1925 and had a 20-5 record but lost two games in the World Series.

"Babe Ruth and Ty Cobb were the best players I pitched against but don't forget Napoleon Lajoie and Home Run Baker—they were some great ball players, too," Coveleskie said. "But I wasn't afraid of any of 'em."

Westfall while the Bruins were shorthanded in the second period gave them a 3-0 lead and proved to be the winning marker. Phil Esposito, John McKenzie and Glen Sather got the other Boston goals.

Garry Sabourin and Al Arbour scored within an 86-second span of the third period to provide St. Louis with its first victory of the season over Toronto. The Blues outshot the Leafs 48-27. Jean Beliveau scored his 16th career hat trick and first of the campaign to pace Montreal's victory in an afternoon contest. Yvan Cournoyer scored twice for the Canadiens, his 29th and 30th goals of the season.

Jean Ratelle scored two goals and set up two others and rookie defenseman Brad Park had four assists as the Rangers equalled their season high for goals scored. Pittsburgh had taken a 2-0 first period lead before New York rallied for its sixth consecutive home victory. Danny O'Shea, Danny Grant and Jean-Ouel Parise scored for Minnesota to guide the North Stars past Philadelphia.

A 5-foot, 9 1/2-inch righthander, Coveleskie beat the Dodgers three times in the 1920 World Series after compiling a 24-14 record during the American League season. He scored 3-1, 5-1 and 3-0 victories in a best-of-nine games series won by the Indians five games to two.

Coveleskie's lifetime winning percentage was .603 and his lifetime earned run average was 2.90.

Petty in Riverside triumph

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (UPI)—Richard Petty had a simple explanation for his victory in the $100,000 Motor Trend-Riverside 500 stock car race as he declared "everything went just right."

The Randleman, N.C., driver, ranked as one of the best in the nation, showed why he was among the best in the stock car driving fraternity by piloting his 1969 Ford Torino to a race record speed of 105.516 miles an hour. The old mark of 100.598 mph was set last year by Dan Gurney.

Petty was making his first start as a Ford driver after years of handling Plymouths on the nation's stock car circuit.

A. J. Foyt, Houston driving star, was second in a Ford Torino, finished 25 seconds behind Petty and on the same lap of the 186-lap race. Another 1969 Ford Torino in which David Pearson of Spartanburg, S.C., started and Parnelli Jones of Palos Verdes, Calif., finished was third, two laps back.

The victory was worth $21,750 to Petty while Foyt earned $8,400 for second and the Pearson-Jones team $5,900 for third.

Al Unser, in a 1969 Dodge, was fourth, three laps behind the winner, while Lee Roy Yarborough of Columbia, S.C., fifth in a 1969 Mercury and James Hytt, Inman, S.C., was sixth in a 1967 Dodge.

Harkluck driver of the race was Mario Andretti of Nazareth, Pa., who appeared to be Petty's chief challenger until he was forced to leave the race on the 155th lap with a broken connecting rod.

For Petty it was the first time he had finished in the Riverside 500 in seven appearances. His best previous effort was in 1968 when he was given 10th place after dropping out late in the race.

"I didn't do anything different," he grinned. "Everything just worked out right."

Gurney, who had won the race five out of the previous times it had been staged, ran into transmission and brake troubles and was forced out on the 68th lap. His teammate, Cale Yarborough, also was forced out by a blown engine after 81 laps.

Only 15 of the 44 cars entered were running at the finish.

Sno-Fooling

CLEVELAND — (NEA) — Luis Tiant flew into Cleveland recently from his Mexico City home to receive the Indians' Man of the Year Award.

Upon his arrival, he was greeted by a snowfall—the second time in his life he has ever seen snow. "It was pretty," he said, "but this cold is just too much."

To ease the shock, the Indians presented him with a fur coat.

FRANCHISES DROPPED

MIDLAND, Mich. (UPI)—The Continental Football League dropped franchises at Charleston, W. Va. and Oklahoma City Sunday in favor of teams in Newark, N.J., and Honolulu.

KING DEFEATED

AUCKLAND, New Zealand (UPI)—Karen Krantzcke of Australia defeated Billie Jean King of Long Beach, Calif., 5-7, 6-2, 6-3 Sunday in a semi-final match of the New Zealand Open lawn tennis tournament.

Cikan; Czech who came Gal golfers refuse to United States to stay to skirt LPGA issue

NEW YORK — (NEA) — After much tabulating of noses, the Czechoslovakian basketball team officials found they were still one short. The team, after a three-week tour of America, was flying from New York back to Prague, without its star guard.

Frantisek Cikan, 20, did show up, but only to see his teammates off. He was staying in America and planned to enroll at Brandywine Junior College in Wilmington, Del. Brandywine, in existence for just three years, was obviously making giant strides toward mastering the skills of recruiting.

A call was put through to Brandywine. It was learned that Cikan was staying at the home of the basketball coach, Mr. Harry J. Pappas.

"Oh it's really been something," said Coach Pappas. "We've had 50 calls from the community. One church group donated $150 for clothes for Frank — Yes, we call him Frank — and other have donated. About $1,000 has already been received. He came without a shirt on his back and now, well, I told him: 'Frank, when you become a millionaire I hope you will take care of me.'"

"It was a courageous move on his part. He has parents and a married brother at home. He was worried about them. I pointed to his stomach, and I said: 'You've got guts.' Then he went to his dictionary and looked it up."

Coach Pappas added that he and Frank had just come back from the immigration office in Philadelphia. A student visa was issued.

Frank was called to the phone.

"He's watering flowers right now," said Coach Pappas. "From a girl. He's a good-looking kid. About 5-9, dark hair, muscular. He's a little shy. But a great ballplayer. I called him the Cousy of Czechoslovakia. He can dribble two balls at the same time with both hands and through his legs. 'I'll put you on with Frank and Mr. Edward Horack. He's been Frank's interpreter.'"

"Hello," greeted Mr. Horack. "I was born in Czechoslovakia but I am a naturalized citizen of the United States. I know only very little about sport. But let me tell please one thing! This boy is dynamite."

Why did he decide to stay in America? The question is repeated in Czech to Frank, Mr. Horack again:

"He says because the American people are so warm and friendly. Also, he did not feel he could continue his study of mechanical engineering and basketball activities in his country because of the Russian occupation. What is the good of it there with the closed up state and impossible living conditions."

Wasn't there an objection raised by the Czech basketball officials?

"They did not like it. But they did not force him to go," Coach Pappas had instructed Frank to see his teammates off. He told him to also take his suitcase. The reasoning was that if Frank decided to change his mind, he could simply step on the plane.

Mr. Horack: "Frank said, 'They all wished me very, very well. They were all crying and so was I. My heart pulled me to them and we hugged goodby. We have played and lived together for five years. We have become close like brothers.'"

Why did he choose Brandywine? "When the team played there he was impressed with Coach Pappas's technique. He also loves Coach Pappas."

The coach was back on the phone.

"You know, in the back of my mind I was hoping to get a Czech player as an exchange student. But I never dreamed one would want to stay here. Actually, Frank had a premeditated plan to stay here when he left Czechoslovakia. But we treated the boys real well, in the true American spirit. They never expected that."

"I've taken Frank with me to recruit some high school kids. He plays with them, sets 'em up with beautiful passes. They love playing with him. Boy, he is really something."

"Say, do you know of three high school players in Brooklyn? They're called the Brooklyn Bums. I'm coming up to see them..."

Recruiting players from Czechoslovakia is one thing. That country is only halfway around the world. But Brooklyn, That's another planet.

Namath wishes O.J. nothing but luck

TOKYO (UPI)—Joe Namath, star quarterback of the New York Jets, said today that Heisman Trophy winner O. J. Simpson "will have to prove himself all over again" as a professional.

Simpson, considered the outstanding collegian of 1968, was the first choice in the recent college draft and was picked by the Buffalo Bills of the American Football League.

"The transition from college football to the kind we play is not as easy one," Namath said today in an interview published in the Asahi Evening News. Namath is in Japan visiting U.S. military hospitals.

Namath, who recently guided the Jets to a stunning upset over Baltimore in the Super Bowl, added: "I've seen him play on television and he has shown me plenty, but he will have to prove himself all over again—to me and many others in the AFL—when he competes on our level."

"I wish him nothing but good luck, except when he's going against my club."

By LEE MUELLER

NEW YORK — (NEA) — Carol Mann sleeps, deep and untroubled, Wispy yellow hair splay across her pillow. She breathes evenly into the sheets. Ah, the sweet, sweet hay.

As she sleeps, Miss Mann dreams. As she dreams, her untroubled sleep disappears. In her mind's eye, she sees a phantasmagorical montage:

Two thick legs in green shorts and white golf shoes tromping on a red green labeled "LPGA" against a backdrop of pink miniskirts and burgundy culottes. Up in a corner, detached, is Arnold Palmer's best smirk.

The specter awakens Miss Mann. It is enough to awaken anyone; in particular, it is enough to awaken the Ladies Professional Golfers Association. There are those who say it's about time.

For years, the LPGA was associated with husky, leather-faced women who waddled around golf courses in renovated pup tents. They called it women's golf, but the only way to be sure was to look at the scores. If the tournament winner shot 78 and won by five strokes, yep, it was women's golf.

No more. Now, thanks in part to Miss Mann, the LPGA is striving hard to wipe away at least one of the obstacles that blur girl golfers' dreams. Skirts are coming, says tour director Lennie Wirtz. Shorts are going.

It has not been easy. Anyone who has ever tried to line up a putt in a miniskirt can appreciate the problem. "It has taken a little bit of courage as well as a lot of practice to make the transition," Miss Mann says.

"It's very uncomfortable at first. You have to learn how to stoop and bend and, you know, keep those knees together. It's worth it, though. We're re-educating the public. It's the younger girls coming up who will profit from it."

The "change" is catching on. Marilyn Smith, for example, has worn skirts for years — long skirts that dropped below her knees. They were her trademark. Now with some encouragement, she has shortened her hem line considerably.

"She always said she had ugly knees," said Miss Mann, "but they weren't ugly, they were just white."

The touch of feminism this year doubtlessly will help the lady golfers' appeal, especially to male golfers. But there are other problems.

Male golfers, for instance, are a problem. Whether it likes it or not, the LPGA is competing against the PGA pro for its adherents. Men like Palmer and Jack Nicklaus grin at the mention of competition from the ladies' tour.

"We've got our own appeal, though," Miss Mann says. "Men are expected to play great golf but if you got some little thing out there in a miniskirt making birdies and eagles right and left, it's something to see."

Miss Mann is not a little thing. At 6-foot-3, she is taller than Mickey Mantle, Cal Yastrzemski or Johnny Unitas. Still, she exudes femininity because, Carol has said, she works on it. Pink miniskirts do marvelous things for tall blondes.

Under Wirtz' direction, total LPGA purse money in the last eight years has risen from $186,000 to anticipated $600,000 this season. "It's coming along fine," he says, "but we need television more than anything."

Lack of TV money and amateur golfers who win their tournaments are two of the LPGA's bigger problems now. Both will have to take care of themselves.

Two years ago when French amateur named Catherine Lacoste won the U.S. Open, the LPGA was considerably upset. Then, in mid-January this year, the national amateur champion, Mrs. Joanne Gunderson Carner, won the richest women's tournament ($35,000) ever played.

"It was a shock," said Wirtz, "but not as much as when LaCoste won. We were all taken aback by that. Our girls have a great respect for Joanne, though. She hits the ball a mile and we consider her one of us, even though she is still an amateur."

Miss Mann advocates bearing down.

"I think if we all mind our own business, work to improve our golf . . . and smile . . . we'll all be better off for it," she said.

Red Wings' all time ice great Howe admits he'll keep trying

By MILTON RICHMAN

UPI Sports Writer

NEW YORK (UPI)—Somebody who got a bit carried away once likened Gordie Howe to a cyclone on ice.

The guy missed the whole point, Gordie Howe is even better off the ice. He's like a breath of fresh air.

He would never know how to be a "house man." In other words he's not a shill. He's never going to say something simply because it happens to be the pat, accepted thing for him to say. He doesn't play those games other people play. He says exactly what he thinks.

The greats in all the other sports, for example, all say the same thing. They're all going to quit while they're on top. It sounds great but there's only one trouble. Few if any ever do voluntarily.

Gordie Howe says you don't have to worry about him in that context.

"I don't believe in the theory of quitting while you're on top," says the Detroit Red Wings' incredible old man. "Hell, if I did I'd have quit 19 years ago."

Nobody, not even Gordie Howe, stick handles his way past mother nature forever.

At the age of 40, the pride and joy of the Red Wings ranks as the NHL's third leading scorer and he still can outmaneuver, outshoot and out plain anything most of the 20-year-olds around but there are visible signs of the 22 seasons he has served with Detroit.

The scars and stitches he bears are only a couple of reminders. Then there are the gray hairs where once it was all jet black and that extra inch or two around the mid-section where once it was just like a washboard.

It's only natural that people keep asking Howe when he plans to quit.

"I've said I'd quit the first time I put two bad seasons together," he says matter-of-factly. "Well, I'm doing pretty well now, my 23rd season with the club, and if next year turns out okay, who knows, maybe I'll try for 25."

Howe doesn't resent people constantly asking him when he intends to retire.

"It's a good question," says the man who has played more games, scored more goals and assists and totaled more points than any other player in NHL history. "It doesn't bother me to have people ask about it. I see where even my mother was concerned. She told somebody she hopes I get out before I get hurt."

Gordie Howe smiles when he says that, not so much because he's so sure he can't get hurt as he's so sure that all mothers are the same the world over. They're forever worrying about their sons.

You can tell something about Gordie Howe by the fact he has never been fined for breaking curfew in all the years he has been in hockey.

"I maintain a curfew upon myself," he says. "It doesn't only have to do with how much sleep I get, but also with how much I eat and how much I drink. It's simple. If I'm true to myself I'm also true to the fans and to the club."

SYLVANIA, Ohio (UPI)—The World Boxing Association has named Lionel Rose of Australia Fighter of the Year. The WBA also announced Sunday that light heavyweight champion Bob Foster and featherweight titleholder Johnny Famechon were selected co-boxers of the month for January.

Oswald: "One of the chief differences between expert or near-expert bridge and simple standard American is the opening two no-trump. Experts use it to show a no-trump hand with 21 or 22 points. With a 23- or 24-point no-trump hand the expert opens with a forcing two clubs and make a minimum rebid in no-trump. In Standard American the opening two no-trump shows 21 to 22 or maybe 23 to 24 points."

Jim: "This ability to split the two no-trump opening makes it possible to use great accuracy in responding. Of course it wouldn't make any difference to the player with today's North hand. With five points he will raise any two no-trump to three and hope for the best."

Oswald: "Unless South exercises great care and plays pretty well he won't make three no-trump. He has the 21 points minimum opposite a rather unappetizing five."

Jim: "Let's see how South should play the hand. He should win the heart lead with his king on general principles and should start after clubs by playing the ace and then the 10 to dummy's queen."

Oswald: "This would give him an extra entry to dummy if clubs break 3-2, but they don't. He can count eight sure tricks. One spade, one diamond, two hearts and four clubs. He can try a simple spade finesse for his ninth but it will be better technique to go after diamonds and to take two finesses there."

Jim: "Right. A low diamond to South's 10 will lose to West's queen. West will probably clear the hearts and South will be back in dummy with the queen. He will now lead the jack of diamonds from dummy and let it ride."

Oswald: "When it holds he will take the proven finesse for the jack of clubs and have his nine tricks."

NOTICE TO BIDDERS

Notice is hereby given that the County of Santa Barbara will receive bids for "Kenneth L. Adam Park, Water and Electrical Improvements, Santa Barbara County, California."

Each bid will be in accordance with drawings and specifications approved by the Board of Supervisors and on file in the OFFICE OF THE DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC WORKS, COUNTY ENGINEERING BUILDING, 123 EAST ANAPAMU STREET, SANTA BARBARA, CALIFORNIA, WHERE THEY MAY BE EXAMINED AND COPIES SECURED BY PROSPECTIVE BIDDERS.

Bidders are hereby notified that, pursuant to the Statutes of the State of California, or local laws thereto applicable, the Board of Supervisors has ascertained the general prevailing rate of per hour wages and rates for legal holiday and overtime work, in the locality in which this work is to be performed for each craft or type of workman or mechanic needed to execute the Contract as follows:

CLASSIFICATION	HOURLY WAGE	HEALTH AND WELFARE	PENSION	VACATION
Carpenter	$5.33	$.36	$.45	$.25
Cement Finisher	5.13	.40	.35	.35

Electrician	6.35	.25
Laborer	3.97	.245	.32	.25
Pipe Layer (Non-metallic)	4.28	.245	.32	.25
Plumber	5.79	10%	16%	13%
Reinforcing Iron Worker	6.10	.305	.30	.25
Truck Driver	4.65	.45	.30	.40
Less than 6 ton 6 to 10 ton	4.68	.45	.30	.40
Universal Equipment Operator	5.56	.30	.60	.30

For any craft not included in the list, the minimum wage shall be the general prevailing wage for the locality and shall not be less than $1.65 per hour. Work on overtime, Sundays and Holidays shall be paid at the prevailing rate in the locality for the craft concerned, but in no case less than time and one half for overtime and double time for Sundays and Holidays.

It shall be mandatory upon the Contractor to whom the contract is awarded, and upon any subcontractor under him, to pay not less than the said specified rates to all laborers, workmen and mechanics employed by them in the execution of the contract.

EACH BID SHALL BE MADE OUT ON A FORM TO BE OBTAINED AT THE OFFICE OF THE DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC WORKS; shall be accompanied by a certified or cashier's check or bid bond for ten (10) per cent of the amount of the bid, made payable to the order of the Treasurer of Santa Barbara County, Santa Barbara, California; shall be sealed and received in the Office of the Clerk of the Board of Supervisors of Santa Barbara County, County Administration Building, 105 East Anapamu Street, Santa Barbara, California, 93104, on or before 3:00 P.M. on the 20th day of February, 1969, and will be opened and publicly read aloud at 3:00 P.M. of that day in the Board of Supervisors' Conference Room located on the 4th floor of the Santa Barbara County Administration Building.

The above mentioned check or bond shall be given as a guarantee that the bidder will enter into the contract if awarded to him and will be declared forfeited if the successful bidder refuses to enter into said contract after being requested so to do by the Board of Supervisors of said County.

The Board of Supervisors of Santa Barbara County reserves the right to reject any or all bids or to waive any informality in a bid.

No bidder may withdraw his bid for a period of thirty (30) days after the date set for the opening thereof.

What becomes increasingly obvious in watching the reruns is that the motion pictures attacked to a timely contemporary theme of a given moment are those that date the fastest, and fail to hold up.

For example, there seems little doubt that the current rash of movies about homosexuality and lesbianism will date particularly fast—if one is talking about the American films about these subjects.

For while the themes are universal and timeless, the contents and attitudes expressed in these American films are geared pretty much to satisfying the sudden new freedom of audiences and creators. In short, exploitation of an explosive, sudden escape from the puritanism of the past.

It may, by the way, seem odd to refer to explorations of sexual themes as contemporary. Yet it is the American nature—and films are no different—to treat sex as though it were just discovered yesterday, particularly the forms of sex that are generally considered unnatural.

And this juvenile exploitation of the subject is going to make many youngsters who are Needed more now, than ever

At the present time, the U.S. Bureau of Reclamation is analyzing a preliminary feasibility report on the Lompoc Narrows Dam project.
The task of analyzing the report is huge. A large number of areas were questioned by the Santa Ynez River Water Conservation District and the County Water Agency. These must be answered or resolved and made a part of a final feasibility report for presentation to the Secretary of Interior and subsequently, the state of California and the County Water Agency.
It would be well at this time, we believe, for Bureau of Reclamation officials to strongly consider another fact in their present analysis of the preliminary feasibility report. We refer to the recent disastrous flooding conditions. It would appear that the after-flooding engineering reviews currently taking place will no doubt add to the required knowledge necessary to speed the approval of this project.

The facts are current. The effects of the disaster are still apparent.

We can think of no better time for the injection of these facts in the analysis of the report.
It is only logical that such facts will prove to all that the Narrows Dam Project is more feasible now than it ever was.

Silence is not golden

The important role that communications play during a disaster of the type which hit the Lompoc Valley Jan. 25 is poignantly illustrated in the memories the Walter Susee family has of that fateful day.
Walt recalls that about 2:30 p.m. on that soggy Saturday, he looked out the west window of his home, the last house in the last block of West Lemon Avenue. The fields that only a few short hours earlier had been green and brown had turned a dirty gray as the muddy waters from the rampaging Santa Ynez flooded unmercifully across the lowlands. Almost instantly a vast lake that seemed to stretch north and south to the hills and west to the sea appeared as if produced by the wand of a magician possessing a macabre sense of humor.

Even without the presence of death-dealing flood waters, the day itself was designed to cast gloom upon the highest of human spirits. The clouds were so laden with rain that they drooped upon the earth like burdened shoulders and mingled there with the murky waters. Color it dark gray.
Walt witnessed the transformation taking place in awe. When he first began watching, the waters were at Floradale Avenue. "Just thirty minutes later they were up east of Bailey Avenue — about two blocks from home."

Walt called Esther to the window and they both watched for minutes in shocked silence. "Let's turn on the radio and find out what's happening," Walt suggested. The dial flipped to all three of Lompoc's stations. Nothing happened.
An icy finger of panic ran up Walt's spine when he suddenly came face-to-face with the unknowns in the disaster. That feeling was to stay with him and with his wife and son for almost another eight hours.
Adding to the frightening aspects of the situation was the water rising rapidly in the Miguelito Channel which runs to the east of the Susee home. "That was only two or three feet from jumping its banks. If that had happened we easily could have been cut off and trapped in the area," he remembers.

The telephone rang, offering a comforting feeling of having some link with the outside world. It was Santa Barbara on the line, seeking information on road conditions in and out of Lompoc. Susee, manager of the local bus station, had to travel downtown to get the information. He departed the house with a stern warning to his wife and son, Jeff, to keep a watchful eye on the channel and the river.
He telephoned police headquarters from his office and was informed that Highway 1 was the only road open at the time and it was experiencing slides. He knew that if a bus did get into Lompoc it may be trapped here for hours or days. He telephoned both Santa Barbara and San Luis Obispo advising them to detour all buses away from the area until further notice. The police could offer little additional information on the status of the flood.

At 4:30 p.m. Esther called Walt at the office, obviously shaken. She had heard reports that Cachuma Dam had suffered a crack and the "whole dam could go at any minute."
Walt rushed home where he and members of the family began moving furniture to the second floor. "It was utterly frustrating," Susee complained. "We had no idea of what to expect. We didn't know whether to pack up and take a few things with us. Go uptown or what. We didn't even know if it were possible to get out of Lompoc at the time."

At approximately 5:30 p.m. Radio Station KNEZ came back on the air and immediately began airing bulletins about the problem at the city sewerage facility "but still we could get no information about what was happening. Was the worst over or was there more to come? It was frustrating and frightening, especially now that it was dark and we couldn't tell what the water was doing," Susee said.

It was about 9:30 that night, that an announcer on KNEZ aired the relieving news that the information about the crack in Cachuma Dam was nothing but rumor. "Sometime after that the mayor came on and announced that Highway 246 leading to the Wye was going to be re-opened and that the river waters were receding. "That was the first time since 2:30 in the afternoon that we had any official and reliable news upon which to base our actions. It was heartening and welcomed news but it sure made you angry not knowing anything in between," says Susee.

A great many people share Susee's feelings about the lack of communications and an early warning system in case of disasters. At the moment, the city and county are working on the problem. Hopefully, as the date of the disaster slips into the background, the work on the disaster control plan will not diminish because the need is no longer strongly apparent.

God's test

WASHINGTON (NEA) In a poem recently sent this reporter from South Vietnam, a young Marine Corporal bares his heart in a prayer.
He first asks God if he has the heart to live or to die for other men. He is afraid that he can't, that it may be too much for him. He wants to know what God is going to do.

God tells the corporal bluntly he must take some of the burden and responsibility on himself for other men, not pass off this task for God to do alone.

The poem ends with these decisive lines:
"In the morning mist that covers me, I think that I

Would rather be, right here, where I can take my stand,

And with my heart, and with my hand, Make life alive for another man."
When there's talk, as there is in these days, about what will happen when today's youth are running the world, this reporter thinks of that corporal not yet old enough to vote.

For this is the same young man written about in this column before . . . the teen-ager who seemed unable to square himself away.

He had twice been thrown out of high school. The principal at the local school refused to let him back in because of his disruptive habits. He drifted from one thing to another.

At the age of 14 he had been picked up and sentenced for leading a group of two other teen-agers in a senseless rampage — breaking the windshields of numerous automobiles and doing hundreds of dollars worth of damage.

Yet he was highly intelligent. You could talk to him as with a mature adult. His responses were well-thought out. He could reason well — in conversation. But, obviously, something was wrong. There was a hitch between the thinking and doing.

One night this young man's mother came to our house crying over her son. He had just attempted to commit suicide by slashing his wrists, then he had run away and hidden at a motel. She had found out where he was and wanted me to go see him alone.

The young man talked most of the night. That was about three years ago. He's now married, has the equivalent of a high school diploma. He plans to study for the ministry after Vietnam.

Washington calling by Marquis Childs

The challenger

WASHINGTON — Completing a year in his new job one of America's most-concerned and controversial figures is working with all his old drive and, in the Kennedy lexicon, vigor.

As President of the World Bank Robert S. McNamara is under nothing like the fierce pressures that beat down on him in the Pentagon. And yet he would not be McNamara if in moving across the river and into the comparative quiet of the bank he had put controversy behind him for a banker's staid and settled life.

Through the past year he has been driving to expand the bank's activity in loaning money to developing nations. At the annual meeting last September of the bank's 110 members he promised to double the bank's loans both in hard and in soft categories through the International Development Association.

But there is a catch to this that, as often as happened in his long siege in the Pentagon, means a confrontation with Congress. IDA in the frenetic last months of the 90th Congress was left out in the cold. Senate and House failed to pass an appropriation of $480,000,000 for a third three-year replenishment of the fund for the agency that makes soft loans to countries so far behind in the development parade they cannot qualify for hard loans.

Whether this was simply inertia and indifference on the part of the Johnson administration or a sign of a deep-seated trend is the subject of an argument that says a lot about this critical moment when the old order gives way to the new. The departing secretary of state, Dean Rusk, sees an era of isolationism ahead. In his gloomy view the American people are turning inward and saying no to the needs of the impoverished nations.

McNamara disagrees emphatically. He is convinced that, if the proper lead comes from the top, Congress and the nation will carry on responsibly for trying to narrow the perilous gap between the poor nations and the rich nations. One of the most challenging statements McNamara made as he played Daniel in the lions' den before congressional armed services committees was: this country can afford to pay the bill for defense large as it is while at the same time doing everything that has to be done to rehabilitate the cities and clean up the environment.

That brought down on him more abuse than anything he had previously said or did, unless it was the TFX plane blow-up. He repeats it today with the same air of stern resolve. But he adds that we can do it if we have the discipline to tax ourselves to provide the money.

By failing to come through with IDA's replenishment the United States made it possible for every other signatory to the IDA agreement to opt out. Nevertheless, enough countries have come forward to make a total of $200,000,000. West Germany put down one-third of her pledged contribution, $39,000,000; Britain $51,840,000; and Canada her full three-year quota of $75,000,000.

The question now is whether the new Congress will redeem the pledge to IDA. As with so much else in this capital in transition it depends on the new man in the White House. McNamara is confident of the answer.

One of his stoutest allies on Capitol Hill is Rep. Henry Reuss of Wisconsin, chairman of International finance on the banking and currency committee. Reuss not only got the IDA pledge out of banking and currency but he helped to round up votes in the Senate Foreign Relations Committee for a favorable report.

McNamara could be whistling in the dark. A new IDA bill was put in early in the session by democratic sponsors in anticipation of quick action. With no organized support spurred by a White House initiative it could fail without ever really having had a chance.

There would be no disguising such a blow. The work of the bank would be greatly impaired. Equally important America's prestige would suffer a severe drop. Cutbacks in American foreign aid are having a serious impact on development programs in India and Pakistan where a consortium of western powers looks to Washington for leadership and a principal source of money.

President of an international organization, McNamara does not go to Congress to present the bank's case. He must work through the treasury and the new hands at the treasury have not yet got around to the problems of IDA and the bank.

As an activist McNamara has not been twiddling his thumbs waiting for a decision. Sale of bonds of the World Bank — the source of funds for hard loans — has doubled. Salesman McNamara pushing his wares in new marketing areas such as Kuwait and Saudi Arabia. A year ago on his massive desk in the Pentagon were the two volumes as thick as Sears, Roebuck catalogues of the annual defense posture statement chock-full of military top secrets. While he is free of that kind of pressure he is nonetheless the challenger doing battle for his most deeply held beliefs.

Skyjacking

The entire aviation industry is in a complete quandary as to what to do about the skyjacking of planes to Cuba.

Studies are underway; protests are being filed by pilot associations; the Miami tourist industry is suffering; President Nixon's staff won't fly to his summer retreat at Biscayne on commercial airliners — it's tough.

The Federal Aviation Agency is getting bushels of mail from citizens who believe they have the answer to the problem.

We have all read of the suggestion that a trap door should be put by the pilot so he can spring the sky-jacker to doomday. However, most sky-jackers take a stewardess back with them to the cockpit area and it would almost be certain that, with such a suggestion, the stewardess would be on her way to doomday too.

One fellow suggested the use of Mace. Mace, however, is not a fast-acting agent and the skyjacker would still have plenty of time to shoot or knife. Also, the stewardess would probably get a snoot full too. It is also rejected because the cockpit area of most airliners is very small and any squirting of Mace in such a confinement would probably put the pilot out too.

It has also been suggested that a mock airfield be built resembling that of Havana's somewhere on the Florida coast. The costs of such a development for the number of skyjacks would be prohibitive.

Free flights by airliners might be a good solution. However, usually the sky-jacker doesn't want anybody to know he's headed for Castro-land so he or she wouldn't be inclined to book passage on a free flight.

The airlines are also extremely reluctant to search all passengers, for public relations reasons, but are considering some type of metal detector as they pass through the boarding line.

Perhaps one of the most sound suggestions received should be considered. Hire a Cuban band. Before the plane takes off, play the Cuban national anthem. If anybody stands, arrest him.

THOUGHTS WHILE SHAVING

We're invaded by pretty little faces around our house loaded down with Campfire Girl mints . . . The Friends magazine, published by Chevrolet, has a nice layout in the current edition of Lompoc's flower fields. Good thing they didn't take the pictures last week . . . Vaughn Proctor, our reporter, couldn't figure out why so many people were asking him questions concerning flood relief at a meeting of the Farm Bureau the other evening. He suddenly got the message when he looked up and discovered he was standing directly under a sign stating: "Information" . . . With all that oil drilling in the channel with questionable safeguards, we were bound to have a runaway oil slick in the ocean someday. We agree that the whole operation be shut down until highly restrictive safeguards are instituted at the federal, state and county level. Our beaches are a priceless asset, in most instances, as precious as the oil . . . Gopher eradication suggestions are once again pouring in for us. The latest, and we're going to try it, pour Drano down the hole followed by a little water.

The chief of police is a bit miffed at our anecdote in Friday's paper. He says he wasn't in town Saturday during the emergency. The anecdote stems from the fact that on Monday he was going to show our reporter the "call list" in case of emergency as devised by the Civil Defense people. However, the CD people had picked up the list to update it. The chief indicated at this time that it needed updating because of the fact that the late Mayor Frank Twyford was to be called in case of emergency. As Sgt. Friday would say, those are the facts.

JANUARY 25, 1951

This community could hold up its head yesterday. The onus of "failure" was lifted when 27 Lompocans appeared at the Veterans memorial building to give their blood for the war-wounded in Korea.

Surveying a rights-of-way for the Miguelito Flood Control project has been completed by Santa Barbara county and descriptions are being drawn preliminary to the filing of "friendly" condemnation proceedings, it was announced today.

Lompoc's dwindling water supply can no longer be overlooked and a storage reservoir large enough to supply the city for four to five years should become an immediate concern for the community, the city council was advised Tuesday by Enil Scolari, head of the city utilities system.

FEBRUARY 2, 1961

A series of ordinances granting a general pay raise to all city employees, setting up job classifications and spelling out personnel policies were unanimously approved by the Lompoc City Council Tuesday night.

The Lompoc City Council agreed Tuesday that they will meet a half hour earlier at their regular meeting next Tuesday to discuss filling a vacancy at the city planning commission.

The Board of Supervisors on Monday agreed to have a request by Lompoc city officials for county money to improve College and Pine streets adjacent to county property east of the new high school site be presented during the forthcoming budget session.
